79 DIE IN AIR DISASTER

Debris, Bodies Scattered Deep Into Bushland

(See Page 2 for Death List)

By GUY RONDEAU

ISSOUDUN, Que. (CP)—Seventy-nine persons died Sunday in Canada's worst-plane crash when a big DC-4 dug deep into a swamp and tore apart, leaving flame-singed wreckage scattered over a wide area near this community 15 miles southwest of Quebec City.

While available evidence pointed to lightning as one possible cause of the mid-afternoon tragedy, investigators set about an inquiry. The crash eclipsed the TCA accident last December when 62 persons died against a peak in B.C.

There was no official word available on what might have doomed the Maritime Central Airways plane, inbound for Toronto from London. Aboard were homing vacationers, including many former British servicemen. The plane had been chartered by an Ontario veterans' association and was on course.

All but two of the passengers — a Charlottetown father and his five-year-old son — were from Ontario. Issoudun villagers told of hearing a "frightening blast" as the plane plunged into the swamp beside thick bushes.

It was last seen whirling into the advance clouds of a vicious thunderstorm.

Clothing, passports and parts of bodies were strewn over acres of the swamp.

The body of an infant lay near the empty pilot's seat and a fragment of a navigation map, at another spot, was a human arm.

No other bodies were immediately found.

The plane left Keflavik, Iceland, early Sunday and checked in by radio at Moncton, N.B., Mont Joli, Que., and Quebec City.

Minutes after passing Quebec, it crashed.

An air force plane from Trenton, Ont., dropped three members of a para-rescue squad which, sent back the brief message:

WRECK SINKING INTO MUSKEG

OTTAWA (CP)—Wreckage of a crashed plane in which 79 persons died near Quebec City Sunday is slowly sinking into water-soaked muskeg, Deputy Transport Minister Baldwin said today.

He said a major pumping operation may be necessary to reach the wreckage for use in an investigation launched by the department. Craters containing plane sections were filling with water.

Grim News Crushes Relatives

TORONTO (CP)—About 100 relatives and friends of people aboard the Maritime Central Airways plane that crashed near Quebec City Sunday waited in vain for the arrival of the ill-fated airplane at Malton airport here.

A posted announcement in the airport waiting room told them first that the plane was overdue. Later, they were ushered into the airport's immigration room, where an MCA official announced that the plane with 79 passengers and crew aboard, had crashed, with no survivors.

The announcement shocked some into silence, others to tears and still others to hysteria. Some frantically tried to grab the passenger list from the MCA official, Ted Mullins, who made the announcement.

Eric Thomlinson of Burlington said that most persons in the room had no inkling of what was coming. They just knew that the plane was overdue.

One man said he thought he had been called into the immigration room because the plane had arrived. "I was looking for my wife," he said, "when this chap got up and announced the plane had crashed and there were no survivors. Just like that."

Women began to cry. Some shrieked hysterically. Some collapsed, white-faced, into chairs. "They can't be dead—not my dad and mum," one thin-faced girl screamed.

'EVERYTHING BLOWN TO BITS' Witness Describes Horror Scene

By FRANCOIS DUSSAULT
ISSOUDUN, Que. (CP)—Everything seems to have been blown to bits—the plane, every one aboard and every piece of clothing.

Wreckage is strewn everywhere. There are five large holes in the muddy field, each about 15 feet deep. Four of the holes apparently contain the plane's motors. The fifth has a piece of the fuselage in it. There is about a foot of water—green water—in each hole.

Of the 73 passengers and six crew members who went down with the aircraft all I could find during the time I was there was the left forearm of a woman.

The crash occurred in a clearing, on the edge of a heavily-wooded area. I was told a number of bodies probably were tossed into the woods. No effort was made to find them Sunday night. The water is ankle deep and the bush is thick.

The plane seems to have been wrecked by a tremendous explosion. The largest single piece of aircraft I saw was only about seven feet long and a foot wide.

Smoke was still coming up from the charred wreckage when I arrived at the scene. But although most of the plane burned there were bits of clothing, purses, personal papers and passports littered on the ground untouched by the flames.

I saw snapshots of children and color slides scattered around on the ground. There was a seat strap hanging from a tree and a rubber raft in the bush.

Lightning which struck a high tension power line at the B.C. Cement Co. Ltd. plant at Bamberton Saturday has halted cement manufacture for all of B.C.

The plant, sole producer at present, will be closed probably until Thursday.

Two 3,000 KVA transformers were knocked out by the lightning bolt which struck at 3 p.m., halting operation of the kilns and the grinding mills.

Normal output of cement is 10,000 barrels a day.

There will be no curtailment of employment for the 250 workers a company spokesman said. Those who want to remain away can take the period as holiday time.

An emergency transformer is en route from the Vancouver Rolling Mill. It will link with the standby transformer on hand. The transformers operate in banks of two.

It was the third point on the island to be struck by lightning.

Huge Plane Disintegrated in Crash

Scattered rubble is all that remains of a Maritime Central Airways DC-4 which crashed 15 miles southwest of Quebec City Sunday during a violent storm. The plane carried a party of former servicemen

and their families home to Canada after a holiday in Britain. All 79 aboard perished. Troops today were searching for the bodies, believed thrown into the bush when the aircraft exploded. (AP Photo.)

Climber Rescued In Dramatic Feat

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP)—The huge rescue operation for a group of alpinists trapped on the north wall of the Eiger mountain was officially abandoned today.

The only survivor among the four climbers, Claudio Corti of Lecco, Italy, arrived at the Eiger glacier funicular station in a stretcher at 4 p.m. He was to be taken to Interlake hospital by special train.

The 90 volunteers from seven nations who took part in the rescue operation were ordered off the mountain by rescue chief Peter Frei, who said the three other members of the group undoubtedly were dead.

The four climbers have been on the mountain since Aug. 3 and became trapped on the steep face two or three days after they started the climb.

Blizzards halted rescue operations Sunday afternoon and today after Corti had been lifted 1,200 feet to the summit by a brave alpinist swinging at the end of winch-operated cable.

"To go down the wall in this much snow would be suicidal folly that would help no one," a guide said.

"No lives will be risked in order to bring dead men down from the north wall," Frei told a group of guides and alpinists at the glacier station.

Air and telescope observations of the other Italian trapped on the wall, Stefano Longi, 44, also of Lecco, left no doubt that he died of exhaustion and exposure during the night. He had been injured by a rock fall earlier and remained suspended at the end of a rope some 300 feet below the other three since Thursday.

He was seen hanging face down, covered by snow and motionless all day today. His body may remain hanging there as long as the rope holds his weight.

The two German members of the group, Gunther Nordhurd, 27, and Goetz Meier, 26, apparently left the ledge they shared with Corti early Sunday morning in a desperate attempt to make their own way to the top. All trace of them has been lost.

Meanwhile, other mountain accidents claimed the lives of 10 Austrian and German tourists at Innsbruck, Austria, and three Swiss alpinists at Kandersteg, Switzerland.

LOGGERS' STRIKE VOTE COST PROVINCE $12,000

It cost $12,000 to conduct a strike vote among 32,000 B.C. coast lumber workers in June.

This amount was approved today by a cabinet order-in-council authorizing payment out of the provincial treasury.

The vote was conducted by the Labor Relations Branch of the Department of Labor.

Ex-Mayor Harrison Seriously Injured

Former Victoria mayor Claude Harrison will undergo a delicate eye operation Thursday following a Malahat bush accident.

Mrs. Harrison, said of the injury, "It is quite serious." No visitors are permitted.

The accident occurred Friday. Mr. Harrison, who is 71, was clearing underbrush on his Malahat property. He was using a large set of cutting shears when a sharp-pointed branch apparently pierced his right eye.

He was able to make his way to his car and drive one and a half miles to his secluded mountain home.

"It must have taken tremendous courage," said his wife.

Russ, E. German Pact Readied

BERLIN (UP)—Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev has reached "important" agreements with East German leaders, the East German Radio said today.

The radio said the agreement would be signed Tuesday at the end of talks between Khrushchev, Soviet deputy premier Anastas Mikoyan, East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht and East German Premier Otto Grotewohl.

The agreements will strengthen Soviet-East German co-operation, the unity of the "Socialist Camp," and the cause of peace, the radio said.

The agreements were expected to sum up the points Khrushchev and Mikoyan have made in their speeches since they arrived in East Berlin last Wednesday.

These are:

- Rejection of free elections and insistence that Germany can be reunified only as a Communist state, "a peace-loving and democratic state."
- Firm support of East German Stalinist leaders for their "Leninist" policy.
- A promise of Soviet military support if East German revolt or if the West engages in "military adventures."
- Blaming of the West for the split of Germany and a call for the defeat of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the Sept. 15 parliamentary elections.
- Charges that the United States is blocking agreement on disarmament at the London Conference.
- Accusations that the Western Allies and the West German government are pursuing an aggressive policy that could cause an atomic war with disastrous effects for the West.

Economic aid for East Germany.

Khrushchev also has ordered economic co-ordination of the East bloc industrial system to raise the standard of living as an example to the non-Communist countries.

FOR BETTER LIVING

Throughout his tour he has taken steps to back up his doctrine that Communism is more appealing when there is "butter on the bread." And he has demanded that the Communist bloc surpass Western industrial production.

To achieve this goal, he said, the economic systems of the East bloc must be based on a "sensible distribution of work co-operation in production and a co-ordination of economic plans."

FENWICK LANSLOWNE ... to "look around"

Famed Painter Of Bird Life To Make Trip

Combining pleasure with business, Victoria's famed bird and flower painter, 19-year-old Fenwick Lansdowne, is departing Sept. 6 on a trip to New York.

He plans to stay three weeks and says the journey is also in the nature of a field trip.

He will be "looking around the countryside," in his own words. Lansdowne, who now produces most of his delicate, life-like paintings for an Eastern publishing firm, first came to national notice when critics enthused over an exhibition of his work at the Royal Ontario Museum.

Maclean's Magazine, which published an article on him and eight pages of reproductions of his work, plans to present a further portfolio of his paintings in a forthcoming issue.

"Fen" Lansdowne has had no formal art education other than instruction given him by his mother.

Prince Breaks Royal Silence Denies Car Driving Charge

LONDON (AP)—A young prince broke traditional royal silence Sunday by answering his critics.

Fifteen-year-old Prince Michael of Kent firmly denied he drove an automobile. He is two years under the legal age for licensed drivers.

"It wasn't me at all," the young prince told the chief of police on the Isle of Wight.

Michael, the son of the Duchess of Kent and eighth in line to the throne, was at the Isle for the Cowes Regatta all last week with Prince Philip, Some Islanders said they saw Michael driving the car of Uffa Fox, noted yacht designer who is a close friend of Prince Philip.

Police Chief P. A. Paddon told reporters: "Prince Michael was interviewed on board the royal yacht Britannia. He denied he had driven a car."

Meanwhile, Queen Elizabeth maintained her regal silence to criticism of her and the royal courtiers are gathering at Balmoral for their annual hunting, shooting and fishing holiday—same as always.

Carpenters End Strike At Kitimat; Highest Paid

(From CP Dispatches)

KITIMAT — Four hundred and twenty carpenters here and at nearby Kemano won a new wage agreement Sunday which makes them the highest-paid carpenters in Canada.

Their new two-year contract with the Kitimat Builders' Exchange calls for $2.54 an hour retroactive to April 1, $2.58 from Oct. 1, and $2.73 from April 1 next year.

Return of the carpenters to work this morning enabled more than 2,000 construction workers who had been made idle by the 12-day strike to start work again.

Ernie Rodda, business agent of the carpenters' union, described the agreement as "fairly satisfactory." It was short of a conciliation board's recommendation of $2.55 an hour retroactive to April 1 and $2.60 from next January.

"We accepted less than the conciliation award because of the hardship and suffering among other unions as a result of our stand," said union president George Maynes.

RABIES SUSPECTED

PRINCE GEORGE — Provincial and municipal health authorities are holding a dog in the pound here which they suspect of having rabies.

If the canine is confirmed as rabid, it will be the second animal captured in this area in two weeks with the disease.

Ten days ago a rabid squirrel

OFFICER ATTACKED

VANCOUVER — Police said a woman drove through a red light, twice hit a policeman with her car and then resisted arrest Saturday night.

She was charged with criminal negligence. Bail was set at $1,000.

Const. Ed Leask said he was preparing to give the woman a ticket when she put the car in gear and drove at him. He was hit by the side of the car.

Police said she clipped the side of Leask's motorcycle when he chased her and forced her to slow down.

WORKMEN INJURED

VANCOUVER — Two workmen on the 18-storey Burrard building suffered multiple fractures Saturday when a scaffold cable broke and spilled them to the concrete 40 feet below.

In "satisfactory" condition in hospital are Roy Anders, 21, and Heinz Unseid, 23.

HAIL DAMAGES FRUIT

KELOWNA — Hail the size of golf balls struck the West Bank district Saturday night, causing extensive damage to fruit crops.

Peaches, pears, apples and plums were hard hit. Many of those not destroyed were sliced by the frozen pellets. These will be downgraded.

Torrential rains accompanied the hail, the worst experience in this district in two years.

Peaches are about ready for harvesting and pears will be ready soon.

B.C. ROAD CONTRACT

DAWSON CREEK — Piggott Construction Co. of Dawson Creek has been awarded a $1,302,947 contract to build 25.5 miles of the Cassiar-Stewart road in northerly B.C. Informants here said Saturday. Piggott was the lowest bidder among seven.

DIES OF INJURIES

VANCOUVER — Kenneth Hunt, 39, of Haney, died in hospital here Sunday from head injuries suffered when he was thrown from his car on the Lougheed Highway July 29.

He never regained consciousness.

Police said Hunt, sole occupant of the car, appeared to have been driving in the direction of Haney when the accident occurred. There were no witnesses and cause of the accident was not known.

MISSION HEAD BEATEN

VANCOUVER — Superintendent Charles Daley of the Central City Mission was severely beaten Sunday by a man who had been ordered to leave the building if he did not wish to attend church service.

Police are searching for a man in his mid-20s, described as "well known on the skid road."

NUDISTS OFFER GUESTS WARM HOSPITALITY

Members will be present on the grounds to answer questions from people who are interested in joining the club, he said.

In the case of rain, he said, the "open house" will be held inside the large clubrooms. The party will start at 6 p.m.

Strike of Glaziers, Threat by Milkmen Show No Promise of Early Settlement

The situation remains unchanged today in two Victoria labor disputes.

The potential strike of 165 milkmen, employed by four dairies handling 90 per cent of the milk supply in the city, still is in the air.

The strike of 26 glaziers against three companies, now in its third week, shows no prospect of early settlement.

A policy committee meeting Friday will decide strategy for Local 464 of the Milk Salesmen and Dairy Employees' Union.

The milkmen voted in favor of strike action to back up their demands for wage increases of $30 and $32 a month with continuation of the present six-days-a-week milk delivery as recommended by a conciliation report.

The four dairies involved—Palm Dairies Ltd., Shepherd's Dairy Ltd., Island Farms Cooperative Association and side work, which would boost a 20-cent hourly increase for the rates to $2.33 an hour, and less-skilled workers.

I Don't Want To Boast... But Says Bennett

Premier W. A. C. Bennett munched cake and climbed to the top of a picnic table to make a speech Saturday afternoon, as close to 1,000 Vancouver Island Social Crediters gathered at Beaver Lake.

They were there at a basket picnic to observe the fifth anniversary of Social Credit government in B.C.

"I do not want to boast today," said the premier, "but after five years we lead all the other provinces."

Some people say that British Columbia is a high-tax province, Mr. Bennett continued. "But we're the lowest taxed of any part of all Canada... for benefits received."

The premier concluded: "As some people say, you've seen nothing yet. Never were we so dynamic."

Scarce Cabinet Timber

UNDERSTANDABLY, IN HIS peculiar circumstances, Mr. Diefenbaker is having trouble with the organization of his cabinet. With a session of Parliament not two months away, the cabinet still is incomplete. More important in political terms, it is administratively and geographically unbalanced.

The Prime Minister has felt compelled to retain for some time anyway the portfolio of foreign affairs which nowadays is the second office of the state. This may be necessary under present conditions but it is unfortunate.

The office of prime minister, even when a government is firmly in office, must absorb all the energies, physical and mental, of any man. Moreover, it is important that he should be free of departmental minutiae to consider the broad problems of the nation, the general direction of the Government, the sweep of policy as a whole.

If external affairs occupied the whole time of Mr. Lester Pearson and kept him in constant motion, it is obvious that no man can adequately perform these complex duties and simultaneously manage the Government.

Undoubtedly Mr. Diefenbaker knows that and must be eager to appoint a suitable successor to Mr. Pearson, but so far he has not found the man he wants; or if the man has been found—Mr. Michener of Toronto—is often mentioned—the prospective minister seems geographically ineligible.

Toronto and two nearby cities, for example, have supplied all Mr. Diefenbaker's Ontario ministers and it would be embarrassing politically to increase the representation of the metropolis while neglecting the country ridings.

But this situation cannot continue for long without damage to the external affairs department, no matter how able Mr. Diefenbaker may be at a time when foreign policy is of even more than usual importance. It is to be hoped that the present gap will be filled long before the next election.

Meanwhile a permanent minister of agriculture has been appointed in the person of Mr. Harkness, of Calgary, an able and popular man, who will also temporarily hold the portfolio of resources. Mr. Harkness has his work cut out for him. As successor to the redoubtable Mr. Gardiner he faces baffling farm problems common to the entire world, though the sale of wheat apparently will continue under the control of the trade and commerce department.

Politically, of course, Mr. Diefenbaker's chief dilemma is his party's weakness in Quebec, the necessity of giving French Canada adequate representation in the cabinet and the Prime Minister's promise to maintain the former Government's normal roll of five Quebec ministers.

Only eight Conservatives were elected in Quebec and most of them evidently are not considered suitable for cabinet rank. Mr. Diefenbaker has been obliged so far to confine Quebec's cabinet delegation to three members, one of them English-speaking. The two French Canadians, Messrs. Balcer and Comtois, have been given the extremely minor posts of solicitor-general and mines respectively.

This will not do. Quebec, where Mr. Diefenbaker must make substantial inroads at the next election if he is to form a stable ministry, cannot be satisfied with such small crumbs of power.

The Prime Minister must have other plans and presumably is seeking strong Quebec ministers from outside the ranks of the new Commons with a view to their appointment and election later on.

His real need—the historic need of any prime minister—is obvious. He must find a French Canadian able, known and respected enough to represent his people generally, for successful Canadian government has always been and must be essentially a tacit coalition between a representative of each race.

The great coalitions of Baldwin and Lafontaine, of Macdonald and Cartier, of Laurier and Fielding, of King and Lapointe, of St. Laurent and Howe, all demonstrated this organic law of national politics. Mr. Diefenbaker must be governed by it if he is to govern the nation successfully or for long.

It would be unfair, at this early date, to blame him for the obvious weakness of his cabinet, the various temporary appointments and the general air of uncertainty in Ottawa.

The apprentice ministers will need time to learn their trade. The cabinet will hardly shake down and become a working team for a year at least. And probably it will be a very different cabinet, in personnel and policy, that meets the electors next spring or summer.

On the Index

A SPEECH DELIVERED BY MR. Walter Harris, former minister of finance, in the recent South Wellington by-election was perhaps more important than the local audience realized. It represented, says Mr. Grant Dexter, dean of the parliamentary press gallery, the considered policy of the Liberal Party and forecast what may be the basic issue of the next election.

In words approved by Mr. St. Laurent and other Liberal leaders Mr. Harris put the issue thus: "Mr. Fleming (minister of finance) said that the tight money policy has to go. The Canadian people will hold the Diefenbaker Government strictly to account if, as a result of that announcement, the cost of living increases. June 25 (the day of Mr. Fleming's announcement) could mark the beginning of the most serious increase in the cost of living since the last war. Mr. Fleming has nailed the Government's flag to the mast of inflation as being the only way to carry out the promises of the campaign. When we were in office we sought to mitigate the effects of inflation. He dismisses this as unnecessary."

Mr. Harris may have been less than fair to Mr. Fleming, for the present minister of finance no doubt is opposed to inflation. But even if he is, the policy which he promises is bound to be inflationary under present conditions, as the policy which he repudiates (and which the electors rejected on June 10) was anti-inflationary.

Whatever Mr. Fleming's motives and policies may be, the results cannot long be hidden. The cost-of-living index during the next few months will tell the story. If it goes up the present Government cannot escape responsibility for it, especially when Conservative statesmen have attacked rising prices so vigorously and blamed the former Government for them.

Before the next election, Mr. Dexter says, the cost-of-living index, a factual, non-partisan verdict, will tell us which of the two parties was right about prices.

Crowded Teen-Age Day

SCOUT LEADERS ATTENDING the ninth world jamboree at Sutton Park, England, have raised a question common to their movement and to others which cater to boys and girls.

What, they want to know, causes the young people who have passed through the Cub Scouts to drop out before they enter the Scouts?

In Canada, says one spokesman, it is much easier to bring boys into the junior group than to hold them. Half the Cub Scouts drop out before they become full-fledged Scouts and only about one per cent remain to become Rover Scouts, whose ages range from 17 to 24.

This situation is not a purely Canadian phenomenon. Other countries find the same difficulty in holding boys progressing into their teens. Nor is the matter solely one of concern to Scouts. It applies equally to the YMCA, locally, nationally and internationally.

Research conducted on the problem reveals one general finding. Boys leave these organizations in their teens because society today provides for them so many varied interests,

School organization has reached a peak where almost any child with a healthy interest can find expression for it through activity within the school—be that interest music, art or sport.

Churches, Sunday schools, service club-sponsored agencies, community groups and specialist training in innumerable hobbies provide other outlets for youthful energies.

Contrary to the complaint so frequently heard—that there is nothing for young people to do—there appears to be so much that such well-known and excellent organizations as the Scouts and the Y find members slipping away in their teens.

It is obvious, of course, that neither the Scouts nor the Y will appeal to every child or youth. But they do maintain programs offering direction and the opportunities for self-development that carry a broad appeal. While communities can boast such organizations, they are meeting to a substantial degree the needs of the young people—young people who actually want to do something constructive with their leisure.

The Finishing Touches

FROM THE BLEACHERS

By B. A. TOBIN

An Eye for an Eye

ONE of the distinguishing marks of man, as of certain species of monkeys and birds, is his intense curiosity in what is being done around him. Throughout the ages there have been captive audiences of human beings—held captive by their own inquisitiveness. Ugly, carving himself a new stone doorstep for his cave, must have been watched by a crowd of idlers. The pastime has never lost its popularity. Many of the ruins left by vanished races in all parts of the world consist of assembly buildings where crowds of people could watch other people or things. At an early date it must have been generally recognized that people were much more interested in things. Watching people was established as people's most popular inactivity.

Tobin

Parliament did not long exist—and perhaps could not survive—without adding spectator's seats behind those of the law makers. Many of our most awful ceremonies, such as weddings—in the sense of being full of awe, of course—are in fact not legal without at least a quorum of spectators.

Signers of important documents must have an audience, called witnesses. Courts of law provide for public watchers. Almost every human activity is under the scrutiny of bystanders or passersby. It is all part of a deep instinctive compulsion.

Penny a Peek
It remained for the modern age to develop this urge on a commercial basis. Today in many cities the most prominent architecture is that of gathering places: sports palaces, auditoriums, stadia, arenas, community halls, theatres.

In these buildings and enclosures man may enjoy himself, for a modest sum, in watching fellow humans perform relatively simple physical movements, make sounds of more or less pleasant quality, and otherwise comport themselves singly or in groups in an interesting manner.

So popular has this mass watching of others become that the spectator might well be cited as the type-figure of our era.

A large proportion of humanity seems to be particularly well adapted for spectatorship. The human figure fits easily and comfortably into a seated or crouching position. The eyes are well placed for convenient viewing of action both in direct focus and through a wide lateral field. The hands move almost automatically into the applause position and have developed muscular flat surfaces admirably suited to producing sharp sounds through percussion.

Above all, the gregarious instinct is a strong force in the human constitution, so that, far from resenting the presence of others while he is engaged in watching, the average watcher welcomes company, even when this, in the form of large ladies' large hats or other obstructions, is an impediment to his participation.

It is from this phenomenon of mass watching that an advanced refinement of the art has grown.

Your watcher, typical of his class, watches someone else doing or saying something. It is a direct relationship of observer and performer. But this phenomenon may be carried to a status once removed, in which a watcher watches someone who is watching someone else. Thus you have a watcher himself being watched, perhaps one of the most sublime relationships possible in the whole field of spectatorship.

And So On

It will readily occur to the astute reader, of course, that the principle might be carried to still further stages, wherein a watcher would watch a watcher who was watching a watcher who was watching someone do something. And while this is readily acceptable in theory—as indeed, are still further extensions of watchability—it will be found in practice that the watcher even once removed is relatively rare, and refinement to a higher degree extremely uncommon.

The chain of spectatorship could be extended indefinitely, of course, by special and deliberate arrangement, as one might obtain a multiplicity of reflections by arranging mirrors in a series. But this would not be genuine spectatorship, which is essentially predicated on single, voluntary, unorganized observation by each participant.

Beautiful Sight

The enjoyment of a watcher watching a watcher is a beautiful thing to behold, exceeded only by the delight of the watcher-twice-removed who has caught a glimpse of the situation.

It matters little to a watcher watching a watcher that he has missed the crucial play of the contest, that he will be unable to describe the winning goal or the game-saving catch, that he has become so absorbed that he has missed the climactic paragraphs of the speaker.

His enjoyment is on a plane far above the actual business at hand. He will go home well content that he has seen, in the facial reflector of the watcher he watched, sights and significances far more interesting than those on display before the audience.

As Our Readers See It

Honor Thy Father

A nation in order to attain to lasting greatness must be established on good foundations.

Canada as a nation is looked up to as a democratic, freedom-loving country, with the responsibilities of its administration divided among the federal, provincial, urban, and municipal, systems, all working within their respective spheres for the general good of the people. But the real power behind all these systems lies in the citizens, or as we may say, in the homes of the nation.

These homes, therefore, are the foundations on which rests the well-being of the whole dominion, and from these homes come the citizens of tomorrow. The question then is, whether the home life of today is of such a character that the growing youth is developing as those who will soon be called upon to carry on the duties of citizenship in a worthy manner should develop.

We must admit that many parents are failing to bring up their children to respect law and order, and everywhere we meet with the problem of juvenile delinquency, apparently a modern question; so the home is failing in its duties and the very foundation of our good nation is being impaired.

The Bible is not being taught as it should be and God's Eternal Law of Ten Commandments, which in its fifth one enjoins honoring our parents and rulers, and for which parents as well as children are responsible, provides for the well-being of the home.

To meet the growing problem of juvenile delinquency we may turn to God and the Bible and the Ten Commandments and find help in building a good foundation for our country and for Eternity.

Pictures of Esquimalt OC's

Some time ago you published an appeal for pictures or photographs of naval officers who had commanded the Pacific Station. The response was heartening but we still lack portraits of the following officers who serve here in Esquimalt between the dates shown.

Commander A. G. Allgood, RN, 1906-1907.

Captain Robert Gwynne Corbett, RN, 1913-1914.

If any of your readers has photographs of any of these officers, we would be grateful if they could be lent to us for copying. The originals would be treated with great care and returned to the donor.

Park Entrance

Between the Heywood Street entrance to Beacon Hill Park and Douglas Street there used to be a most attractive wild piece of woodland, very probably the last in the city of Victoria.

A couple of days ago I started along the little winding trail that traverses this lovely area of what was unspoiled nature. What was my dismay to find a horrible gash-driven straight through the woodland with many oak trees entirely gone and others with white crosses which seemed ominous to me.

Is there no possible hope of restraining the park authorities? Is this the beginning of a new wonderful entrance to the park (as if there were not more than enough now)?

Is this a new speedway in which some of our younger drivers will delight to display their daring driving to their admiring girl friends? Is an ornate gate to be erected where local and foreign poobas can record the momentous fact that they have graced our park with their august presences on such and such a day?

Now all we want is a palatial restaurant, right on the top of Beacon Hill with service trucks bringing drinks and food to starving tourists. The fact that the restaurant business is one of the most speculative and risky will no doubt add to the attraction of the enterprise.

To Critics of Unions

There are two important points the critics of unions overlook when venturing their wrath. First, assuming the critics are supporters of our present economic and political system, they too are supporters of unions. Secondly, the system under which we live must have unions to survive.

I am no union fanatic, but would like to know what other agency would give the mass of the population, both in and out of unions, a just share of the country's productive, technological and resource wealth. A standard of living does not stand by itself. Would our vast church organizations, service clubs and institutions replace the unions? No. They only deal with the effects of a system, not the causes.

So, if you are going to banish unions, you must first eliminate the untenable conditions which spawned them in the first place. In the meantime one might as well blame the Salvation Army which also does a patching job on a very un-Christian way of life.

You get precisely what you vote for. The fleshless skeleton of democracy has long been supplanted by dog eat dog.

Flag and Church

May I have a little space about the symbolic colors featured in the flag article in your Times of August 8 by Lieut.-Col. T. B. Monk.

Let us not forget that the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches have their own flags. Why should the Lieut.-Colonel suggest any interference with our Canadian national flag? The Union Jack represents our connection and loyalty to the British Commonwealth. Just as the fleur-de-lis represents France so does the maple leaf represent Canada.

As for religion, the first and real Christ, the crucified one said, "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's" (the representative of the state or government), and unto God (of which the churches claim to be representatives) the things that are God's." (St. Matthew 22, verse 21.)

Surly the Anglicans must stand for the harmony or unity of the British Commonwealth. A similar unity or co-operation between all nations, eventually, is the great event for which creation groans and the only hope for humanity.

Atomic bombs, etc., are here to judge humanity because they are unable to learn from the past.

NEW SERENITY

Throughout life, we realise as we look back, we should have been infinitely happier if we had cared less about ourselves. And so this easing in old age of the temptation to centre our lives upon self brings an unlooked-for refreshment, an added serenity, happiness of a quite new kind.

Behind the Trouble in Oman

By SIR ALEC KIRKBRIDE (United Kingdom Information Service)

THE wide publicity which has been given in the Press during the past few days to events in the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman may have conveyed to many readers the impression that an entirely new source of trouble has been discovered in the Middle East. Such is far from being the case.

A dissident movement against the authority of Said bin Taimur, the Sultan of Muscat and Oman, existed before and during the First World War under the leadership of a person who has styled himself the Imam of Oman.

Successive Imams and their followers have subsequently reached an accommodation with the Sultan. They have exercised a fluctuating influence for nearly 40 years over the inaccessible mountainous region which lies to the west of the town of Muscat, in Central Oman—but subject always to the Sultan's sovereignty over the Sultanate.

Trouble Revived

It is here, where the direct authority of the Sultan was only restored fully as late as 1935 on the deposition of a newly elected Imam for treason against his overlord, that the old trouble has been revived with the small town of Nizwa as the centre of the movement. The interior of the state of Oman is populated sparsely by nomadic tribes who, as usual, are incurably jealous of each other with the result that tribes out of favor with the Sultan gave their support to the Imam as a matter of course and those whose views and sentiments were the reverse, supported the ruler.

This is a state of affairs familiar to anyone who has experience in dealing with volatile tribesmen and it does not indicate that there is any difference in the political outlooks of the two factions.

It is, of course, inevitable that because the Sultan has close and friendly relations with the Government of Britain, which incidentally date back to the 19th century, certain Arab agencies should represent those who are defying the Sultan's authority as heroic resistors of imperialist aggression.

It is not the imperialists whom the Imam and his people are resisting but the legitimate ruler of the country.

The question of why the unrest, which has been quiescent since 1935, should now recommence with such violence is very much to the point.

One thing is clear, the recrudescence of the revolt has not happened without encouragement and assistance from outside Oman. In this connection, it may not be accidental that the event coincides with exploration for mineral oil by the Iraq Petroleum Company in the interior of the country.

It has been established that on the 14th June, 1937, Talib bin Ali, the brother and chief adviser of Ghaleb bin Ali the present holder of the Imamate, re-entered Oman territory bringing with him a quantity of new arms which include light machine-guns and anti-tank mines.

Egyptian Source?

The source of these arms has not yet been established but the facts that an "Imamate Propaganda Office" was maintained in Cairo and that its activities were supported in the broadcasts of the official Egyptian radio services are noteworthy.

Here, again, may be an Egyptian-sponsored movement against the hereditary ruler of an independent Arab state. A typical example of such a scheme occurred only a few months ago in the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan.

On the other hand, the existence of a territorial dispute about the ownership of that part of the oasis of Buraimi which lies within Oman territory, between the Sultan of Oman and the King of Saudi Arabia, must not be overlooked. However, it is only fair to say that, so far, the implication of the Saudi authorities in the Imam's movement has not been established.

British Aid

The Sultan has asked the Government of Britain for military assistance. It may well be that he will be called a traitor to the Arab cause for having done so. And the British, doubtless, will be abused as Imperialists who are fighting to protect their oil interests, because they respond to their friend's appeals for help.

In justice, however, the responsibility for British intervention and its results should be placed at the door of those who have recreated unrest where peace had been re-established.

The Government of Britain cannot do less than come to the aid of small states with which they have special treaty relations. It is not a question of imperialism but of doing one's duty. All may be assured that the British forces will do no more than the minimum action which is needed to restore the Sultan's authority.

Reunion Breakfast

THEY SAY—Aunt Ethel's dead, and that Uncle Robert is quite broken up.

Poor, rotund, Uncle Robert—a where's-me-baby man. He used to call Ethel "Booty," meaning "Beauty," in the days of long ago.

And, at this husbandly endearment, all the horrid little nephews and nieces used to wink at one another with hardly-hidden glee. For, in their eyes, Ethel was no beauty but the new aunt who was definitely queer.

She fascinated them with her thin, sallow face, her burning eyes, and her swiftly changing phobias and enthusiasms.

For a time, pork in any shape or form was anathema to Ethel.

"No bacon or sausage for me, Mother Parnell," she said with cold finality when all the scattered members of the family had come home for an anniversary reunion, and were sitting at the breakfast table.

"Oh Ethel dear," said her mother-in-law with genuine concern. "And I had them specially because I know Robert is so fond of them."

"The pig is an unclean animal," Ethel said a shade too fiercely. "Living on offal and refuse. It's unhealthy to eat their flesh. We're warned against it in the Bible."

"That was in a hot climate, Ethel," said Carol, who privately thought that Robert must have taken leave of his senses to marry such a woman. "No one could possibly call England hot."

"Pigs are unclean," Ethel repeated.

"It depends on how they're kept," said her sister-in-law, Mary, who'd married a prosperous farmer from Wiltshire. "If they're properly kept, then pigs are clean."

Little Michael, Mary's son, sensed the argument and tension in the air. And, anxious to contribute his bit to the excitement, he banged his porridge spoon upon the table.

"Pigs IS clean," he shrielled with a hint of tears in his voice. "Say it again, Mummy. Pigs IS clean!"

"Mary," hinted Mrs. Parnell. "Perhaps Michael had better leave the room until he's quietened down."

"I'm sorry, Mother," Mary said, with a furious sideways glance at Ethel. "He's never like this at home. But he's apt to get excited and be upset by strange people."

"Another sausage, please, Mother," said Carol. "And that rasher of bacon if Ethel really feels that she'd be soiled by taking it."

"Carol," her mother said warningly. "I think if you'll excuse me," said Ethel, rising from the table.

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Parnell.

If only families didn't fight she thought, as Ethel stalked from the dining room into the hall where Mary was shushing Michael who was still insisting on the cleanliness of pigs. Individually, she loved her children and their husbands and wives, and could get on with any of them, though it sometimes was an effort. But, assembled, they really were a trial!

"When two or three are gathered together," she mumbled.

"What did you say, Mother?" asked 16-year-old Daphne, who'd kept quiet all this time because she was taking mental notes for the story she was writing in a battered black exercise book, hidden carefully in her bedroom.

"I'm sorry, Mother," Mary said, with a furious sideways glance at Ethel. "He's never like this at home. But he's apt to get excited and be upset by strange people."

Typical English Meal

LONDON—Chatting with some Canadian tourists, we got onto the subject of English food. Since their knowledge of it had been gained almost exclusively by eating in ordinary inexpensive restaurants they were naturally critical. The consensus was that English food was heavy and uninspired.

They agreed with Margaret Halsey, who in her book about England, With Malice Towards Some, said that she was convinced that English food had to be jacked up beforehand so that the plates could be slid under it.

On the score of weight there is no argument. The English have to provide themselves with some good solid fuel to counteract raw climate and ill-heated buildings. But as regards everyday restaurant food being uninspired, I think that's a criticism that can be made on both sides of the Atlantic.

I've been trying to think up what could be called a typical English meal—in other words, a meal which when laid before you would tell you that you were eating in England and nowhere else.

On these terms, I would say this is the typical English meal:

Windsor Soup. This is a thick brown soup of no particular flavor. It just sort of tastes brown. Why the Royal Family has been blamed for this, nobody quite knows.

Roast Beef, with Yorkshire Pudding.

Brussels Sprouts and Roast Potatoes.

Salad. This is rarely taken with hot food but is included here because the English have their very own idea of what makes a nice salad—half a hard-boiled egg, a piece of tomato and two slices of cold beetroot sitting on a leaf of lamp lettuce.

Steamed Pudding, with golden syrup and custard.

That's a meal you'll encounter every day of the year in Lyons cafes, pub dining rooms and provincial hotels. Filling and cheap—you can still get it for the equivalent of 50 cents.

Now, what could be classed as the typical Canadian meal? How about this:

Fruit Cocktail. This is something you don't come across as a regular first course in other countries. In England and any other place I've been, chopped up fruit is exclusively a dessert.

Creamed Chicken, with mashed potatoes served with an ice cream scoop, and peas and carrots. (Oh, those Rotary luncheons!)

Salad. Pears, chopped celery, nuts and mayonnaise on crisp lettuce. One of the first strange things that new citizens in Canada must get used to is finding fruit in a salad.

Pie a la Mode. The expression "a la mode" meaning with ice cream on top is unique to your side of the Atlantic.

It is meaningless to a waiter here and Canadian visitors who insist on it find themselves served with pie and ice cream on separate plates and they must do their own mixing, while the waiter looks on horrified.

Bridge to Mainland Urged To Bolster City's Economy

An ex-Victorian, now living in California, believes a big bridge to the mainland would solve Victoria's economic problems much like bridges were employed to span San Francisco Bay.

James McEwan, a San Jose foundry owner and manufacturer, is making his second visit to Victoria since leaving for California 35 years ago.

"I don't see why Victoria should not share more in the prosperous economy of the entire coast," he said.

"The barrier seems to be only one of water as far as Victoria is concerned."

SOLVED

"In San Francisco Bay area they seem to have solved that problem with their big bridges. All the big things are now found around the Bay area."

He referred to the Golden Gate Bridge, spanning the neck of water separating San Francisco from the timber and agricultural areas of California's north coastal region, and the Bay bridge connecting San Francisco with Oakland and the rich north interior.

San Jose, a short distance south of San Francisco, is home of Mr. McEwan's Reliable Pattern Works and Foundry, and Max Manufacturing Co., of which he is president and general manager.

Mr. McEwan has always kept a warm spot in his heart for Victoria.

"I'm so glad to find it unspoiled here," he said. "It still has the basic charm and beauty I remember as a young man."

Mr. McEwan is accompanied by his wife Ann Marie and daughters Janet Marie and Mary Ann, who are seeing Victoria for the first time.

A former Times carrier he went to Kings Road and North Ward Schools, and had as his principal J. M. Campbell, father of deputy minister of education Harold L. Campbell. At Victoria High his principal was Ira Dilworth, now a CBC executive.

Leaving school, he began his apprenticeship with Hutchison Bros. Foundry, now Ramsay and Adams Foundry Co. Ltd., the plant which burned down last Saturday.

Mr. McEwan felt he probably would be most remembered for his activity in boys' work here as a young man. He organized the Hustlers' Club at Centennial United Church and led 35 boys in sports and camping.

As a result he was made assistant boys' secretary of Victoria YMCA, a post he held two years during which camps were held at Beaver Lake.

Loss of $1 Million Breaks Casino Bank

CANNES, France (UP)—The plush Palm Beach casino of Cannes went into its third and apparently final day of "official mourning" today after its bank was broken.

By long-standing tradition, casinos close their doors for three days after someone has broken the bank.

The bank of the Palm Beach gambling house, one of two in Cannes and one of many on the Riviera, was broken last week by movie magnates Jack Warner and Darryl Zanuck and several other international tourists.

Gambling circles on the baccarat-lined Riviera said today that the casino had been losing all last week, from Monday to Friday.

Sums won individually by Werner, Zanuck and three others administered the final knockout.

All told, the casino went broke when it lost 350 million francs ($1,000,000).

Five tourists won 160 million francs. Several other tourists are believed to have taken away the other half million dollars at various times from Monday to Friday.

But the biggest sums were taken by Jack Warner, who won 40 million francs ($114,285); Zanuck, 20 million francs ($57,142); London jeweler Bobbie Barnett, 30 million francs ($85,714); New York clothing manufacturer Arthur Cole, 20 million francs ($57,142) and Brazilian coffee grower named Marvin, the biggest winner with 50 million francs ($142,857).

The big question in Cannes today was what would happen to the Casino's bank.

The casino itself was not affected, since a powerful group of bankers, and not the casino, underwrite the private baccarat tables where all the money was won.

Costs in Germany Up

WIESBADEN, Germany (Reuters)—The West German cost-of-living index moved up 1.6 per cent from June to July this year, the federal statistics office announced today. The increase was mainly due to higher potato and fruit prices. Some fruits were 36 per cent higher than in July, 1956.

Timbermen Wrap Up No. 2 Berth

A fighting Vancouver Pilsener team battled gamely as Nanaimo Timbermen clinched second place in the Intercity Lacrosse League by whipping them 15-8 at Nanaimo.

The win gave last year's league champions the odd game advantage in their semi-final playoffs against New Westminster Salmonbellies, should their series go the limit of five games.

The playoff series opens in Nanaimo Tuesday night with the second game in the Queen City Thursday. Action returns to the Hub again Saturday.

Trailing 5-7 at the half, Pils made a desperate bid for a win in the third period with only Alf Shuker keeping the Island team in front with an outstanding display of goal-tending.

His efforts exhausted the youthful Vancouver entry and Nanaimo went ahead to drive home five unanswered goals in the final frame.

PUNCH LINE
Nanaimo coach Harry Wipperf unveiled a new punch line as he moved star defenceman Derry Davies up onto a forward line with Skip McKay and Mike Good.

It was a pay-off move as the line scored all Nanaimo's five first-period goals and went on to add another.

McKay hit for four goals and a like number of assists while Good scored twice and assisted on one. Davies gained three assists.

Arnie Dugan came alive to score four times while Spud Morell had three goals in his stick for the winners.

By Associated Press

There's a pennant race missing in the National League today and the chief suspects are Conley, Spahn, Burdette and Buhl.

Milwaukee's "big four and no more" has the Braves 5½ games in front of a pennant scramble that is quickly changing from a riddle into a romp with no sign of a letup.

Lanky Gene Conley, veteran Warren Spahn, controversial Lew Burdette and strong-armed Bob Buhl... They have done it all in the Braves' two-week breakaway that has left the four other pretenders lagging in the dust.

Since July 28, the big four has drawn 13 consecutive starting assignments and come away with 12 victories.

SEVEN IN A ROW
It was the rejuvenated Conley's turn Sunday and the 6-8 righthander, free again of his arm miseries, turned in a steady seven-hitter as Milwaukee whipped St. Louis for its seventh straight, 5-1.

Linked with Brooklyn's double defeat by Pittsburgh, Philadelphia's split with New York and the rout of Cincinnati's doubleheader with Chicago, it left the once torrid race with its worst case of gaspiness since the first cry of play ball.

St. Louis, losing six straight, trails by 5½, Brooklyn by 6½, Cincinnati by 7 and Philadelphia by 9 1/2.

Ken Boyer's ninth-inning home run deprived Conley of a shutout but he had long since

Early Blast Smothers Firefighters
Jack Doney's first-inning, three-run homer moved Fletchers a game in front of their best-of-five Senior "B" Softball League finals against Firefighters.

Fletchers' 4-2 victory at Heywood Avenue Park Sunday, with Ellis Achten winning against the combined efforts of Ray Ramsay and Rod Turner, gave them a 1-0 series lead.

Ramsay gave up all four of Fletchers' runs in the first before Turner came on to snuff out the fire. He slammed the door tight on the winners, allowing them a bare two hits for the eight innings he pitched.

Next game will be played Tuesday night at Heywood Avenue Park at 6:30 with the following game slated for Friday.

Firefighters 49 000 000-4 7 1
Fletchers 160 101 000-2 4 0

The Vic Y junior girls' team won 200 freestyle and medley relays and the juvenile girls' team took second place in their 200-yard medley.

Only Victoria swimmer to take a first place on Saturday was John Cornall, who led the 25-yard freestyle for first-year swimmers.

Bill Didn't Forget 1955 Lesson

By PETE SALLAWAY

"I didn't blow it this time." Those were the first words Bill Muncy shouted to owner Willard Rhodes and designer Ted Jones as he arrived back at the pits Sunday afternoon after piloting Miss Thriftway to victory in Seattle's Golden Gold Cup speedboat classic.

It will be remembered that two years ago, on the same course, Muncy appeared to have the Gold Cup safely stowed away only to lose it to Miss Gale V. of Detroit on points through his failure to maintain a high average speed in completing the final heat.

Sunday, with two heat victories to his credit and leading in points, Muncy knew he had to stay ahead of Shanty, owned by Bill Wagner of Arizona to win.

When Shanty missed the south turn buoy on the first lap Muncy knew he was in, but kept his foot down on the throttle to make certain of victory.

Sunday's Gold Cup produced another first. When the winning driver arrives back at the pit it is tradition for his crew to toss him into the water. Thriftway's outfit did it up in royal fashion. The entire crew went into the water with Muncy. But they didn't mind they were such a happy group. If Rhodes and Jones had been on the float, I feel sure they would have also gone for an immediate ducking.

Most disconsolate owner in the pits was Bill Boeing of Miss Wahoo. After winning the first heat the Seattle-owned speedster looked like a sound challenger. But she never got out on the course again, refusing to start for her next engagement. To make matters more frustrating Miss Wahoo showed up on the course just before the start of the final heat and showed a neat turn of speed. But it was too late.

Most of the pit crews were of the opinion Miss Thriftway Too, although she conked out early in Sunday's race, will develop into a strong challenger in future races. She kicked up a real rooster tail in her short appearance and was knocked out through a broken quill shaft—the real bugaboo of hydroplane racing.

Sunday's race was further evidence the Detroit owners are going to have to get more speed into their boats if they want to get that Gold Cup back east.

Western speedsters had much the best of it all day with Gale V. the only eastern representative to show any great lick and that came in the final heat when pit crew chief Bill Ducey took over the wheel. He pushed Gale V. up this second place for a couple of heats but had to back off when Muncy pressed him.

It was a great day for Seattle and the boys can start thinking of another head-ache come next August when they will try and outdo the Golden Gold Cup promotion. It's a real show.

Mayer Played Long Enough

Closing Surge Turns Tide As Snead, Balding Falter

CHICAGO (UP)—Dick Mayer played to win for only four holes Sunday, but two birdies on those earned him Tam O'Shanter's "world" tournament and golf's biggest payday, $50,000 cash.

Mayer finished 72 holes in 273, nine under par, with a spurt which overcame a deficit of five strokes to Sam Snead and four to Al Balding before they began the last 18 holes.

"I was on the 15th tee when I figured out that I needed a couple of birdies and they could be had," he said. "And with those last four holes, it's not probable that you're going to get the birdies."

But Mayer knocked his third shot four feet from the pin on 15th and dropped the putt for one birdie. On the 16th, though, trapped on his drive he blasted six feet from the pin for a par, and on the 17th, he fired his second-shot-out-of-the-rough nine feet from the flag and sank the putt for the other birdie.

SLAM DODGERS

The last place Pirates made 11 hits in cuffing Brooklyn 6-2 in their second game after Bill Mazeroski's two-out single had won the opener, 4-3 in 10 innings.

Rookies Jack Sanford and Curt Barclay traded three-hit shutouts at the Polo Grounds, Sanford winning his 15th for the Phils, 2-0, after Danny O'Connell's three-run homer had helped Barclay take the opener for New York, 5-0. Barclay, with two straight shutouts, has a string of 19 scoreless innings.

Glants' Willie Mays tripled twice and singled twice to run his hit streak through 18 games.

In Saturday's action, Milwaukee trounced St. Louis 5-0 behind Spahn's five-hit pitching and Brooklyn blanked Pittsburgh 3-0 with Don Drysdale spacing seven hits. Cincinnati got by Chicago 7-2 while Philadelphia at New York was rained out.

YANKEES GAIN

In the American League, relief catcher Darrell Johnson rapped out three singles to lead New York Yankees to a 7-2 victory over Baltimore Orioles.

The win put New York 5½ games ahead of runner-up Chicago who split with Detroit, winning an 11-2 nightcap after losing 8-5.

In other American League games, Boston swept Washington 8-5 and 4-3 in 11 innings and Kansas City dragged Cleveland down to sixth place, its lowest standing in 10 years, with 7-0 and 9-8 victories.

Johnny Kucks evened his record at 7-7 behind the Yankee attack that included Bill Skowron's 16th home run.

TRIPLES HOME WINNER

Gene Stephens, known to the Red Sox as Ted Williams' stand-in, tripled home the 11th inning run that gave Boston a sweep over Washington.

Relievers Ike Delock and Mike Fornieles picked up the victories and Williams picked up another major league record. The thumper drew his 26th and 27th intentional walks to break the season mark of 26 set by Brooklyn's Duke Snider last year.

On Saturday, Mickey Mantle hit his 31st home run of the season, tops in the league, and had three other hits as New York beat Baltimore 5-3. Chicago bowed 6-4 to Detroit. Boston took Washington 4-1 and Kansas City scored three unearned runs in the ninth to beat Cleveland 8-5.

Fortunately, nothing was broken, but it could well be a couple of weeks before he will be able to take the mound again.

Bill Prior went on the mound in the opener and was tagged heavily by Stud Batters who collected nine safeties off him. The evening encounter went better for the local nine as they finally found the range of Seattle's moundsmen and zeroed in on them for 12 hits.

Two Farmers batsmen accounted for the majority of their runs as Art Worth hammered out a pair of homers to drive in four tallies in the fourth and seventh and Charlie Boyd homered in the fifth to drive in a pair. Boyd added another 71, one under par, while Snead took a 74 and Balding a 73.

"I worked hard all day," he said. "It was Mayer's second tournament win this year, the other in the national open, and the prize lifted him well in front of the field in money winnings. Going into the "world" he had been seventh in earnings with $15,833.

Balding and Snead tied for second, each winning $7,500, while George Bayer and Litter tied for fourth, each getting $2,750.

Seniors Launch Big Event Today

United States golfers won the International Cup from their Canadian counterparts Sunday in a best-ball team match as a prelude to the 35th annual Pacific Northwest Seniors' Golf Association tournament.

The U.S. squad won five matches, tied two and lost three in the event, a best-ball on handicap competition.

Some 180 players from B.C., Oregon and Washington are entered. The tourney proper gets under way today with the qualifying rounds.

The large U.S. contingent is headed by defending champion Corey Wagner of Seattle. Wagner teamed up with Roger Peck of Tacoma Sunday to defeat Pete McIntyre of Trail, B.C., and R. D. Clay in one of the best matches of the day.

Peck took the limelight away from the defending champion with a par-equaling round over the 5,997-yard, par-69 Victoria Golf Club layout. McIntyre, a southpaw and former champion, also turned in a hot round mainly because of his work on the greens.

Ed Eisenhower of Tacoma, a brother of the U.S. president, is also listed as a leading favorite in the hunt for the championship Barnard Cup. When he lost to Wagner in last year's final it marked the seventh time Eisenhower had been a runner-up in the tournament.

Other top U.S. threats are Ralph Whaley of Seattle, an eight-time winner, and Harry Andrews and Dr. Oscar Winning of Tacoma. Andrews won the title three times and Dr. Winning triumphed in 1954 and is a former Walker Cup player.

Portland provides a strong one-two punch in Frank Stenger, a two handicapper, and W. H. Blakely, who shoots to a one handicap.

Seventeen entrants, most of them high handicappers, turned in qualifying cards Sunday. The rest of the field tees off today and match play starts Tuesday.

DUBLIN (AP)—Cork qualified for the all-Ireland senior football final at Croke Park, Sunday, defeating Galway 10-9.

Merwin Miller Wins Four Tennis Crowns

Things went pretty well as the dopesters figured in the B.C. Open lawn tennis championships held at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club last week as Pasadena's Merwin Miller made a clean sweep of four events.

Miller captured the men's singles and doubles, mixed doubles and junior veterans doubles titles in a long afternoon on the courts in Saturday's finals.

In the ladies' division it was Bev Danby of Vancouver who cleaned-up as she won the ladies' singles, doubles and mixed doubles crowns.

Miller went against Gordon Davis of Southern California, Victoria team of Maureen Gray in the singles final and ham-

Thrifty Eases To Cup Record

SEATTLE (AP)—Miss Thriftway successfully defended the Gold Cup in the 50th-anniversary running of the speedboat classic here Sunday winning her first two heats and finishing a comfortable second in the final jaunt of the 90-mile race.

Driver Bill Muncy pushed Thrifty to a Gold Cup record when he averaged 101.983 for the route. The old mark was 99.552, set here in 1955 by Gale V. of Detroit.

Shanty I, holder of the Harmsworth Trophy and last year's national champion, finished second in the point total.

Shanty's twin sister, The Maverick, wound up third in the overall point standings. A Detroit entry, Gale V., was fourth. Breathless II of Lake Tahoe was fifth and Short Circuit of Detroit, sixth.

HUGE CROWD

A crowd estimated by police at almost half a million crowded the shores of Lake Washington or watched from nearly 1,000 pleasure boats around the course. The sky was studded with clouds but there was no rain and the water was nearly ideal for the big, unlimited hydroplanes.

Hawaii Kai, the flamingo-colored speedster from Seattle, took a torrid pace in the final heat until she lost her power on the last turn of the ninth and next to last lap. In winning the first heat of the day, the Kai had set a lap record of 114.4 miles per hour around the three-mile course and a heat record of 109,823. She lost her chance to pick-up bonus points for her first time when she failed to finish the other two heats.

Going into the final heat, the cup decision rested between the Seattle-owned Thriftway and Shanty, with Thriftway 100 points to the good. Either one was in position to turn in the best overall time for 90 miles and win 400 bonus points.

Shanty lost her chance when she miscalculated the south turn buoy after the start and had to loop back to circle it. After that, knowing the race was his as long as he stayed ahead of Shanty, driver Muncy held Thrifty in the middle of the field.

With two 400-point firsts, one second worth 300 points and an elapsed time bonus of 400 points, Thriftway wound up with 1,500 points.

Crowd Caught On, But Lions Didn't!

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—

The Edmonton Eskimos, powered by fullbacks Normie Kwong and Johnny Bright and featuring a strong defence, defeated the British Columbia Lions 9-6 Sunday in the first exhibition of Canadian football in California.

Primo Villaneuva caught two of Murray Duncan's passes in the scoring drive and Cameron caught another for six yards and a touchdown. Duncan's try for the extra point was wide to the left.

Edmonton scored again the fourth quarter when Mobra attempted a field goal from the 29. The kick was wide but long. Dubuque picked up the ball but conceded the rouge after seeing he had no chance to run it out.

The victory was the third exhibition win in a row for the champion Eskimos, who picked up their first point on the opening kickoff when Joe Mobra's kick hit the crossbar and resulted in a rouge.

The ball bounced into the end zone and Chuck Dubuque was hit by a flock of Eskimos as he attempted to run the ball out.

After an exchange of punts, Edmonton went 48 yards in seven plays for a touchdown with Normie Kwong busting over from the one. Mobra converted with Don Getty holding.

The Lions bounced back in the third quarter, going 43 yards in 10 plays for their lone score.

Edmonton Girl New Tee Queen

MONTREAL (CP)—Slim Betty Stanhope, whose introduction to golf was a job shagging balls at an Edmonton driving range, won the Canadian Ladies' Open Amateur championship Saturday with a solid 5 and 4 win over Mary Gay of Calgary.

The 19-year-old Edmonton girl with the smooth, graceful swing, piled up a six-hole lead along the back nine of the morning round of the 36-hole final and all but wrapped up the title there.

She ran her margin to eight holes in the afternoon and withstood a gallant bid by her 25-year-old opponent.

At the 32nd, Miss Gay had taken three holes in a row but couldn't afford to halve a hole. Both girls were on the green with their second shots. Betty's putt stopped less than a foot from the cup. Mary's was 20 inches away. She walked over and shook hands with the new champion.

Betty takes over the title from Marlene Stewart Streit, eliminated in the second round by Miss Gay.

IS STILL JUNIOR Betty, still ranked as a junior, has played in the open amateur since she was 14. She has never been close to the final before.

This summer she quit her job in Edmonton as a billing clerk to concentrate on golf. She won both the Alberta senior and junior championships, defeating Miss Gay at the 1956 senior final. She won the junior Canadian championship last year, surrendering it this year to 18-year-old Judy Darling of Montreal.

This was the fourth appearance of Miss Gay, formerly of Kitchener, in the final. It was her best performance.

Mary's courage was a thrilling standout. She eliminated

Germany Buying Arms Up to Billion Dollars

WASHINGTON (UP)—West Germany has placed orders for more than $300,000,000 worth of U.S. arms under an agreement signed last October, it was learned here.

The total will top a billion dollars if the Bonn government decides to buy American war planes in quantity.

BIG BUILDUP

The arms agreement was designed to permit the West Germans to buy all the weapons needed in the buildup of corps and army commands for the new German defence force. The United States already has supplied nearly $1,000,000,000 worth of weapons which are equipping units up to division strength.

These latter range from 155 millimeter self-propelled guns to naval and anti-aircraft weapons, specialized trucks, and transport planes. The Germans have ordered other specialized equipment for their medical, quartermaster, ordnance and communications corps.

The biggest amount measured in costs will be for planes to fly in the new luftwaffe. The Germans have not yet decided what types are needed. Gen. Josef Kammhuber, chief of the Luftwaffe, toured American air bases last winter but showed no marked preference for any model except an interceptor fighter.

German experts also are shopping through Britain, France and Italy for suitable craft.

Shot at Own Car

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Police constable Morris Samples thought a car he saw drive past on his beat looked familiar. He flagged down another auto and chased it. He got a look at the licence plate and confirmed it was his. After he shot at the tires, it stopped and four youths jumped out and fled.

$75,000 GRANT ASKED FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

Government assistance in construction of a residential treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children is sought by a Vancouver Red Feather agency.

In a brief to the cabinet last week, the Children's Foundation Home proposed that the government put up half the estimated $150,000 cost.

N.Y. Fisherman Hits $8,000 on TV Quiz

NEW YORK (UP)—Norwegian-born fisherman Andrew Nass tied with Samuel Perla of Buffalo, N.Y., for $8,000 Sunday night on the CBS television quiz show "64,000 Challenge."

The tie came when the two men correctly answered a series of questions on the Roman Empire.

Nass, now a resident of Camden, N.J., correctly gave Pontus as the country of which Mithradates was King, and said he fought three wars against Rome before finally being defeated by Pompey the Great in 66 B.C.

Perla—a riveter—told what army Hannibal commanded (the Carthaginians), where he defeated the Romans in 216 according to a traveller arriving B.C. (Cannae), and who finally defeated him in 202 B.C. (Scipio Africanus).

Anti-Red Signs Seen

MACAO (Reuters)—Posters saying "Expel Mao Tse Tung" and "Welcome President Chiang Kai-Shek back to the mainland" have appeared recently on walls in Canton, Southern China, where he defeated the Romans in 216 according to a traveller arriving B.C. (Cannae), and who fin-

"I'm not what you'd call hard of hearing"

...but I'd never be without my ZENITH 'Diplomat' Slip-On Hearing Aid!

"Why do I wear a Zenith, when I'm not really 'hard of hearing'? Simply because I want to catch every word of what's going on—without straining. I will never be without my Zenith 'Diplomat' Slip-On Hearing Aid."

These are the words of a leading businessman, and he adds: "I have several friends, including women, who are hard of hearing, and they're as enthusiastic about the 'Diplomat' as I am."

The predominant reason is that Zenith offers the best in quality and performance. Then too, the "Diplomat" is light, full-powered, small and inconspicuous. It fits snugly and comfortably entirely at the ear. No dangling cords, nothing in hair or clothing.

The "Diplomat" Slip-On Hearing Aid plugs instantly into a tiny, lightweight ear-mold so you can enjoy extra-clear hearing at any time.

Mr. John W. Lawrence, prominent Chicago sales executive, tells of his experience with the new Zenith "Diplomat" at-the-ear hearing aid.

You can try the "Diplomat," or any of the other 4- and 5-transistor Zenith Hearing Aids, on Zenith's famous Ten-day Money-Back Guarantee of satisfaction.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class)

BB (Worthwhile)

A (Don't Miss)

B (For Rainy Days)

C (To put in time)

(A) "THE PRINCE AND THE SHOWGIRL" (Royal): Warner Brothers' "The Prince and the Showgirl" easily could bear the subtitle, "The Rookie and the Pros."

It's a gay picture this, risqué in intent and bubbly like champagne. If, in the end, it proves to be merely a domestic brand it is champagne nonetheless.

But, beyond the story, students of the cinematic art will get their greatest thrill from watching a team made up of some of Britain's most illustrious names, including Sir Laurence Olivier, who produced and directed the film, Dame Sybil Threlkaye and Richard Widmark.

And when it is over, most will be willing to concede that the rookie, even though lacking the finesse of the others, was responsible for scoring her share of the goals.

Terence Rattigan's story has been told before, almost since the time there were princes and showgirls. Nonetheless, it's engrossing far, sometimes outright farce, at others gentle and quite beautiful.

It's 1911 and the dignitaries of the world are arriving in London for the coronation of King George V and Queen Mary. Among them is Grand Duke Olivier who tries to take his mind off the affairs of state and the political coup he suspects is being set up by his own son by calling backstage on the cast of a play. There he meets American showgirl Marilyn who is so awkward in her awed curtsy that he shoulder straps gives way. The Prince, realizing that there is more to this than meets the eye, invites her to his suite at midnight.

But Marilyn has played this game before with men who, though not of royal blood, were convinced they had the royal touch. And for every one of the Prince's thrills she had a ready payoff. In the end, however, she is defeated by the vodka blended with champagne and passes out. As far as the Prince's plans are concerned, that was it.

BUT NEXT morning mama, in the form of Dame Threlkaye, finds she has no lady-in-waiting for the coronation and the showgirl is hurriedly rigged out for the occasion and finds herself being driven in state to the Abbey for the coronation. She has also become involved with the politics of state being waged by the Prince and his son.

Throughout it is obvious that Marilyn is fully aware that she is in exalted company but in spite of her best the rough edges of her skill show. Nonetheless, one can't imagine any one more suited to the role. And one must admit as well that she has a most refreshing personality and, in her own right, is one of the best comedienne on the screen today.

Fight Nuclear Arms Red Festival Urged

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow's 15-day world youth festival ended Sunday night with colorful pageantry in Lenin Stadium, coupled with a plea to the 34,000 delegates to continue a campaign against nuclear weapons.

More than 100,000 Russians and their guests jammed the stadium for the formal ending of the festival, which had mixed youth from both sides of the iron curtain in meetings and athletic events.

Bruno Bernini, Italian president of the Communist-sponsored World Federation of Democratic Youth, appealed to the visitors to return home and work for abolition of atomic and hydrogen bombs.

Most national groups will begin their homeward journey together Monday, but the U.S. group was split over a trip to Red China which is opposed by the U.S. state department.

47 AMERICANS TO CHINA

Forty-seven of the 150 Americans were packing for the eastward trip Wednesday as guests of Red China's government. They were turning their passports over to Red Chinese authorities Sunday night for visas. The others began leaving for home or for schools in Western Europe where they have been studying.

The entire U.S. group came here against the advice of the state department. Those going to Peiping are doing so in defiance of state department regulations.

Some who are not going said they would have liked to tour the Chinese mainland for three weeks but feared repercussions at home, including possible lifting of their passports.

Those who are going said they were willing to take their chances so they can see China under communism, something few Americans have done.

The split has caused hundreds of arguments over the merit of the Red China trip. But al-

Lightning Hits Cafe at Cassidy

NANAIMO—The El Rancho Cafe, a popular night spot at Cassidy, six miles south of here, was struck by lightning and the kitchen destroyed by fire Saturday.

2-3% Increase Rejected At James Island

A 2 to 3 per cent wage increase offer has been turned down by 150 workers at the James Island explosives manufacturing plant of Canadian Industries Limited.

The offer, rejected unanimously by the employees, was termed "hopeless" by A. W. Toone, a member of the negotiating committee for Canadian Chemical and Explosives Workers, Federal 128.

The present wage scale ranges from $1.63 to $2.11. Original demand of the union was a 10 to 25 per cent increase designed to increase the spread between unskilled laborers and craftsmen but plant manager R. B. Carpenter said the union lowered this during negotiations to a spread averaging 11 per cent.

SIDNEY — Plan here to build a new civic centre, which has already seen $3,000 spent to acquire land and a surplus airport building may be scrapped.

Sidney Village council instead is considering additions to its present offices, built in 1904 for $112.

Six other public administrative groups have offices scattered about the village.

Reconstruction of the surplus building for village use would cost about $4,000, or a most double this figure if rebuilt for joint use with other civic groups.

Commissioner Joseph Bilger and chairman Dr. C. H. Hemmings are against the plan to utilize the surplus building. Commissioner A. A. Cormack has proposed consideration of repairs to the present office and was supported by Commissioner T. A. Aiers.

No one was on the premises at the time, 1 p.m.

Damage was estimated at about $1,200.

The bolt was believed caught by a protruding ventilating shaft which carried the electrical charge to the kitchen.

The cafe is owned by Mrs. Edith Daly.

3 FIRE CREWS

The blaze was extinguished by firemen from Cedar, Wellington, and a B.C. Forest Service fire crew.

Several other buildings were hit but damage was to electrical systems only.

A bolt hit the land section of the submarine cable between Duncan and Nanaimo and was held responsible for a six-minute blackout in Victoria between 5:53 and 6 a.m. Saturday.

Lions Start Calendar Drive At Langford

LANGFORD—Langford and District Lions Club community birthday calendar drive is underway with Innes Cooper supervising.

It was decided to start ordering earlier this year as some areas in the past were unable to be canvassed in the short time before deadline.

Supper meetings of the club will be resumed in September when new officers will be installed.

They are president, Bernard Whipp; first vice-president, Doug Price; second vice-president, Innes Cooper; secretary, Murray Cameron; treasurer, Dr. Enbert Van Tilberg; new directors Howard West, and retiring president Lorne Fuller. Les Smith is taltwister.

Doug Price has been named assistant chairman for the zone, which includes Vancouver Island and the Olympic peninsula.

Bill Lamoreaux, senior clerk at the Bank of Commerce, Langford, who has just been appointed accountant at the Campbell River branch of the bank, has been given his transfer to the Lions Club there.

NANAIMO CHEF Mike Farano and George Molecey, chairman of Nanaimo Centennial Committee, discuss problems confronting them in "building" the "World's Biggest Birthday Cake" which will mark 1958 centennial year. Cake will be completed by next June and will take hundreds of hours of labor by dozens of persons.

TO DEPICT CENTURY OF B.C. HISTORY

Over 15,000 Sugar Decorations For Five-Ton Centennial Cake

NANAIMO — Creation of blocks, each weighing 60 pounds, then shipped here to be built into one huge cake, 15 feet high by 25 feet square.

The cake will be housed in an air-conditioned building where it will be iced and decorated ready for public showing next June through August in downtown Nanaimo.

Mike Farano, Nanaimo chef, is making the decorations.

"We start with the very smallest pieces first, working up to Dogwood flowers 18 inches across, and sugar totems three feet high," he explained.

Part of the recipe calls for 600 dozen eggs, 800 pounds of butter, 1,000 pounds of cherries.

The cake will be cut into 75,000 pieces, packed into small sample boxes and sold ready for mailing at a sub-postal station commissioned by the post office department.

Top Officials Conclude Tour Of RCN Centres

Seventeen high-ranking military and government officials from Britain, India, Pakistan, New Zealand and Australia concluded a tour of RCN establishments here at noon today and left for Vancouver in HMCS Fraser at 2 p.m.

They are members of the Imperial Defence College, an annual tour of Canadian military installations.

The party is led by Rear-Admiral W. G. Crawford, DSC, and Canadian conducting officer Lt-Col D. W. Blyth.

BOAT BASIN BIG NEED AT KELSEY BAY

A boat basin at Kelsey Bay, so boats won't have to go all the way south to Campbell River for anchorage, is a prime necessity for Vancouver Island's northern communities of Kelsey Bay and Sayward, Victoria Aid. Geoffrey Edgelow said Saturday.

Just returned from a trip to the area, he said cost of the basin which would be built on the sheltered side of the wharf would be about $80,000.

The two communities are also striving to have the road from Campbell River repaired.

Mr. Edgelow said the road was in such poor shape tourists were going 10 miles of the way, then turning around.

"It took me three hours to go the 51 miles."

ISLAND DIGEST

AT DUNCAN, SAANICHTON

Farmers Hustle For Fall Fairs

By TONY DICKASON

The big boom in fall fairs is sounding all over Vancouver Island.

The two major fairs, the Cowichan Exhibition of the Cowichan Agricultural Society, and the 89th exhibition of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society, are the top attractions.

This year they will feature more blare, bleats, oinks and onions, cattle and cantering than ever before.

The Cowichan show, in Duncan, will run from Thursday, Sept. 5, to 7, and in Saanichton, Aug. 31, and Monday, Sept. 2.

CLASS "B" The Cowichan fair is the sixth since its attained class "B" status. This has increased numbers of exhibitors in the many sections. This year also, the Saanichton fair received its class "B" rating.

This probably will mark the last time the exhibition will be held on the old grounds in Duncan. In the 1958 centennial year, "we hope" to have our own grounds, free from the lack of security of tenure that has handicapped us the past few years," says exhibition president Archie Stevenson.

In the two exhibitions, there are literally hundreds of classifications, including horse shows, cattle, vegetables, poultry, sheep, goats, swine, rabbits, fruit, flowers—all the products of a bounteous land.

17 CUPS Trophies abound. In the saddle horse classes alone there are 17 cups and trophies to be presented at Saanichton, and 23 for cattle classes.

Cash prizes cover most entries, ranging from a modicum of 75 cents for asters in vases to $25 for a first prize for a milking cow.

With the important role agriculture has played in development of Vancouver Island, the exhibitions reflect tangible evidence of its continuing value.

The Saanichton fair will be officially opened at 1:30 p.m. Labor Day by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who also is minister of agriculture. Honorary patron Japan, Hong Kong, Philippines.

'Coca Cola Navy' Days Recalled in Mine sweeper Deal

By PETE LOUDON

Many old sailors, some of them Victorians, will suffer memory switches when 10 old minesweepers are handed over soon to Turkey under the NATO plan.

One of them, HMCS Swift Current, gave first taste of salt water to many who trained on the East Coast in 1942.

Swift Current, at that time, shared a jetty at Pictou, N.S., with HMCS Kamloops. The two were affectionately known as the "Coca Cola" navy.

They went out each morning into the placid waters of Northumberland Strait and came home each night. The supply trucks always left a load of "coke" on the jetty. The name came naturally and stuck hard.

Except for a small permanent crew, the appellation did

TOO BUSY

They only stopped aboard two weeks for final touches to their pre-operational training—and they were kept too busy to care. Men were needed on the convoy routes. Swift Current was the ship where unsalted tars still carried a paper bag when they went on watch for fear of mal de mer. So crowded with trainees was she, that hammocks hung even in the tiller flats where oakum and soap of bow's stores more than scented the air.

It was the ship where "swinging the lead" was a daily chore. The hand-line was swung overside to determine depths. The sailor learned to throw a heaving line, rig collision mats, stand lookout, take a trick at the helm and holystone a deck.

Swift Current picked her officers and petty officers for their ability to teach unforgettable lessons. There was the P.O. who would ask a sentry for his revolver. When it was handed over the recruit was blasted for ever letting it out of his possession.

The four-inch gun crew would be piped away to other duties and the sight-setter would stand fast to guard his gun. A burly lieutenant would approach and fiddle with the sights. The hapless guardian would be spun on his ear for "letting" the officer touch it. Swift Current worked with a British submarine which submerged but towed a buoy. Green Asdic operators, unable to see the buoy, searched for waves.

Graduated from Swift Current, the new men or "jeeps" doffed their white hats and from then on wore blue, like all other wartime sailors. Alma Mater to the men who later went to war at sea, she carries a fine record to Turkey. May they treat her well.

450-Mile Walk For Centennial

45-Mile Okanagan Swim Also in Planning Stage

A 45-mile mass swim on Okanagan Lake is under consideration by the B.C. Centennial Committee as a 1958 project, committee chairman L. J. Wallace said today.

The swim, down the lake from Kelowna to Penticton, has never been completed.

A number of swimmers, including the first person to conquer Juan de Fuca Strait, Bert Thomas, have tried. Vancouver housewife Mrs. Ann Meraw will make another solo attempt this week.

Mr. Wallace said another suggestion being considered is to stage a 450-mile walkathon across the province.

The mass walk probably would follow the historic Dewdney trail, from the Alberta border to Vancouver.

Both the mass swim and walkathon will be placed before the centennial committee board of directors for decision.

NAVAL SHOW

One of the biggest spectacles planned for the centennial celebration, an international naval review, is moving closer to finalization, Mr. Wallace said.

Invitations have been issued through the department of external affairs and Royal Canadian Navy at Ottawa to Commonwealth countries, the United States, Spain and Mexico.

It is hoped that about 30 warships will rendezvous in the Strait of Juan de Fuca for the review.

On the proposed visit to the province by Princess Margaret, Mr. Wallace said he hopes that an official confirmation announcement will be made within the next two months.

Reports that the Royal visit is already a certainty have been denied by Buckingham Palace.

Times' Church Columnist Dies at 72

Widely-read and respected Times' church columnist for almost two years, Mrs. Ethel Tull, 72, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday.

With her weekly church page column "You Said To Me," Mrs. Tull offered a Sunday message of help and comfort for the troubled.

In her final column July 27 before she was taken to hospital, Mrs. Tull stressed again her recurrent theme of "living by the guidance of God and checking every thought and act with the requirements of the Sermon on the Mount—absolute honesty, purity, unselfishness and love."

Because these four principles governed her own life, Mrs. Tull was able to give quiet help to the many persons who phoned or called on her at her home.

ST. MARK'S

When she moved with her husband to Victoria in 1951, Mrs. Tull joined St. Mark's Anglican Church, and served in the women's auxiliary and as a parish visitor.

"She was a most remarkable person," Canon Robert Willis, St. Mark's rector, said, "a woman who was highly respected and beloved by everybody."

Mrs. Tull was born in Yorkshire, England, and came to Canada in 1907. She lived for several years in Courtenay, where she joined the Moral Re-Armament Group.

RAN SCHOOL

She also operated a business school in the up-island centre.

Mrs. Tull is survived by the widower Frederick William, at home, 339 Niagara; one son, Eric Harold, London, Ont.; three grandchildren, and one sister and two brothers in England.

Canon Willis will officiate at the funeral service in St. Mark's Church Thursday at 2 p.m.

Interment will follow at Royal Oak Burial Park. Funeral arrangements are in the charge of McCall Brothers. In lieu of flowers, the family has asked that donations be given to the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Rites Wednesday For Ex-Athlete, Eagles Official

Thomas R. Rickinson, chief steward and member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie No. 12, died Sunday at the age of 59.

Mr. Rickinson had lived in Victoria for 50 years and was well-known as a former player and manager of a soccer team in Victoria West. He was born in Darlington, England.

Mr. Rickinson also served in the Canadian Army during the First World War and was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Victoria Lodge, No. 1.

Surviving are the widow Agnes, at home, 1016 Balmoral; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Agnes Rickinson, three grandchildren, and two brothers, Ernest and Stanley, all of Victoria.

Funeral service, under auspices of Aerie No. 12, will be held at Sands' Mortuary, Wednesday at 4 p.m. Cremation will follow.

$2,000 Damages For Square Dancer

A 73-year-old man who was knocked down by a car while on his way to take part in a square dance was awarded general damages of $2,000 in a judgment handed down today in B.C. Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane said the man, Peter Thompson, was knocked down by a car while crossing Douglas Street near Hillside Avenue on Oct. 26, 1956.

Arena Profit $26,656; One of Smallest

Victoria Memorial Arena today reported an operation profit of $26,656—one of the smallest in the arena's seven-year history.

For the first time, the arena was unable to pay the city the full $25,000 annual return on investment.

The amount was reduced this year by $3,632 spent on new equipment.

Profits since 1950 have ranged from $25,880 in 1950 to $60,892 in 1954.

Last year's profit was $29,303. The serious drop at that time was blamed on television.

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, AUGUST 12

MONTE ROBERTS

According to Time magazine, Mood Music is the big thing in the record industry these days.

The trend is toward music designed to aid and abet certain situations which occur in the lives of men and women. Mood music started, as does most music, with the accent on romance. Albums such as Music for Lovers Only, Music to Change Her Mind, pointed the way to greater things.

And now the greater things are upon us. There are albums called Music for Meditation, Music for Gracious Living, Music for Courage and Confidence, Music for the Expectant Mother, and Music for Washing and Ironing.

(Honest, I am not imagining any of these titles, so help me Mantovani. They are for real.)

My own opinion is, the music industry is to be highly commended for the start it has made on catering to our assorted moods.

But I agree with Time magazine that the industry could go further. Not yet in the catalogue, Time complains, are Music for Boozing and Music to Soothe Your Hangover, Music to Shave By, Music for the Analyst's Couch, Music to Beat Your Wife By, and Music to Spoil Your Taste for Music.

And in addition, I have some nominations of my own, for record albums which, I am sure, would enjoy astounding sales in this area.

In fact, I plan to set up a new business to produce mood music especially suited to the characteristics of Victoria and environs.

I have already started work on the basic arrangements for an album to be called Music for Drowning Out Anguished Cries of Merchants Objecting to One Way Streets. For this I am considering an adaptation of the 1812 Overture, with Spike Jones and 4th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery.

And, for Almost Swimming Juan de Fuca Strait, I am asking Lawrence Deep to work with me in his liquid fashion on a version of How Deep is the Ocean?

I haven't decided on the orchestra, but, for Music for Watching the Garbage Scow go by, what better than Red Pails in the Sunset?

Music for Protest against Arboreal Amputations should feature Woody Herman and they Cut Down the Old Pine Tree.

An album in which I take a personal interest is Music for Attempting to Sneak an Extra Minute on the Parking Meter without the Commissionaires Catching You. The Music? Me and My Shadow, of course.

I think there is a future for mood music, and am looking forward to an album called Music for Being in a Mood for Music.

7-FOOT WING SPAN

Albatross Sighted At Mill Bay

A rarely seen "diomedea exulans" in the order procellariiformes was spotted and nearly captured by two men in the Saanich Inlet Saturday.

The long-sounding names stand for "albatross" in English. It's the world's largest bird which frequents only the open ocean.

The big fellow, with a wing span of over seven feet, caused considerable excitement when first seen swimming near Mill Bay.

Jim Knight and Tom Moss, operators of a boat house, tried to capture the albatross in a net.

APPEARED SICK "I never saw such a big bird," said Mr. Moss. "I think he was sick. We got within a few feet of him and then he took off."

Repe T. Moss, of Sidney, also reported seeing the bird and feeding it with bread crumbs. It came within a few feet of his boat, he said.

Charlie Guiguet, museum biologist, said it was most unusual to see an albatross in inland waters. Its a bird of the open Pacific, he said, which breeds on Hawaiian Islands, 3,000 miles from British Columbia.

Its a famous flyer. It rarely flaps its wings, but glides for days low over rolling seas.

Slow Driving On Highways Protested

A campaign against slow drivers on main highways—particularly Pat Bay Highway—is being organized by directors of Victoria Automobile Club.

As a result of numerous complaints, the club has appointed a committee to visit heads of police departments in Victoria, Esquimalt, Saanich and Sidney. Police will be asked to enforce legislation against drivers who impede traffic by driving too slowly and hugging the middle of the road.

"Many motorists do not know there is a law against obstructing traffic by driving at slow speeds," George Warren, secretary of Victoria Automobile Club, said today.

"And many do not seem to realize that if they wish to travel slowly they should keep to the right hand side of the road."

THERE'S LIFE IN THE OLD BIRD YET, says Louis, 100-year-old Macaw on whose continued life depends final disposal of $400,000 estate left by Miss Victoria Wilson. Terms of will after her death in 1949 stated pet birds—including dozens of canaries and budgies and patriarch Louis—must be cared for before residue of estate went to charity. Already most of $400,000 has been given away but enough has been retained to maintain birds in their favorite environment, Miss Wilson's former home, Courtney Street. With Louis is his keeper, Ah Wong. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

Montreal Mayor Sends Amyot Good Luck Wire

"Can you repeat your channel exploit?"

This challenge was wired to swimmer Jacques Amyot today on the eve of his attempt to beat Juan de Fuca for the glory of his hometown Quebec City and all of French Canada.

Jean Drapeau, mayor of Montreal, wired a good luck message for "the most complete success" to the 32-year-old draftsman and the request for a smashing victory similar to Amyot's conquest of the English Channel last year in 13 hours and two minutes.

11 HOURS

Amyot drops into the water off Ediz Hook at 8 a.m. Tuesday and begins stroking for Victoria in an attempt to cross the strait by 7 p.m., 11 hours after the start.

He was to leave for Port Angeles this afternoon with his trainer, Raymond Roy, aboard the 75-foot tug Lady Marjory, skippered by Capt. Rolfe Robinson, that is to shepherd his solo attempt.

Amyot, whose assault on the 18.3-mile stretch of tide-ripped water was financed by public subscription in Quebec City, is making the try after applying too late for inclusion in the Jaycee mass swim.

LOW TIDES

"The tides will be very low tomorrow but I don't know about the weather," Mr. Roy said.

"Amyot will do his best," he promised. However, if he doesn't succeed because of the strong current, a second attempt will be made.

"But if it's the cold water, then we won't try again."

WHOLE COLUMN ON CITY EYE-CATCHERS

N.Y. Times Sees 'Charm' In Hanging Flower Baskets

Victoria's lamp-post flower baskets have come to the attention of the New York Times, which says they have "charm."

On the page devoted to gardens, writer Sonya Evans devotes a whole column to the 550 beautiful baskets.

She tells the history of the baskets, first hung in 1937 to mark the city's 75th anniversary, and of the varieties of flowers used, which include ivy-vine geraniums, fuchsias, petunias and lobelias. She even devotes several paragraphs to the types of fertilizer found most suitable.

An interesting point she makes is that Allentown, Pa., has used cast iron brackets attached to lamp posts for hanging baskets since the 1920s. In addition, Norfolk, Va., has placed about 50 flower baskets and 100 flower boxes on public buildings this year.

The Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau here receives frequent requests for information concerning the unique baskets.

These come from writers, tourists, community leaders, flower fanciers and civic bodies.

BLOOD DONOR TAGS to be issued in collection drive Tuesday and Wednesday for the first time were approved by Mayor Percy Scourrah today. He is sponsoring local campaign to restore hospital blood banks which report serious shortages all over B.C. Mayor's challenge for blood-letting contest has gone out to Vancouver and New Westminster, also holding clinics this week. Red Cross mobile clinic will be at Red Cross House between 1.30 and 4.30 p.m. and 7 and 9.30 p.m. both days. Officials hope to beat 1952 one-day record of 496 donors. They promise "no waiting." Latest supporters to "Mayor's Drive" are 15 Colwood Trail Riders who will turn out Tuesday night in western costumes.

Circular V.I. Route Chamber Aim

A circular road linking Port Hardy with all the main cities of Vancouver Island will be urged by a delegation from the Associated Chambers of Commerce in a meeting with Premier Bennett and his cabinet on Aug. 20.

"We appreciate the progress that is being made in the development of West Coast roads," Chamber secretary Arnold Webb said today.

"But we wish to urge on the government that the ultimate aim should be a highway encircling the whole of the island."

Mr. Webb attended a meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce at Nanaimo this afternoon.

B.C. Pays $1,000 To Housekeeper

Mary Fraser, housekeeper at Government House, has been reimbursed $1,000 by the provincial government for loss of personal belongings in the disastrous fire last April 15.

Miss Fraser, who is employed by the provincial works department, estimated her total loss at $4,015.

The Playfair Queen of Port Angeles, Miss Sheryl Robinson, and 11 of her ambassadors will call on Mayor Percy Scourrah at the city hall at 2 p.m. next Friday.

She will formally invite the mayor and citizens of Victoria to take part in Port Angeles' Playfair tourist festival, opening next week.

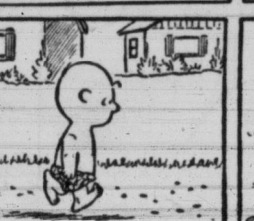

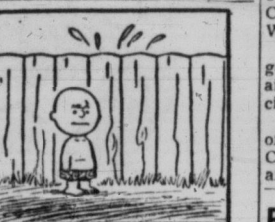

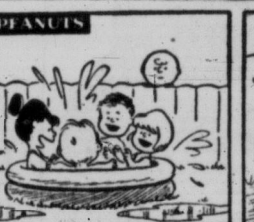

Heather Morgan, a student at Oak Bay High School, has been awarded first honorable mention for the Bliss Carman award for ballad or lyric poetry at the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Heather, now in Grade 12, wrote her poem "Leif Erickson Discovers America" while she was in Grade 11.

Minor damage to stove and woodwork was caused by a fire in Around the Clock Grill, 937 Yates, Sunday at 4.15 p.m. Fire department said grease caught fire when it became overheated.

Steel for Point Ellice Bridge is expected to begin arriving later this week.

Mayor Percy Scourrah said today the progress of the bridge is "on schedule." Opening is expected in early November.

Veteran CCF campaigner, former MLA for Saanich and well-known high school teacher, Frank Snowsell was honored with his family at a going-away party recently. Over 100 CCF members and friends attended the event at Douglas Hall. A presentation was made by Saanich CCF Association and the women's council. Mr. Snowsell will move to Prince George as vice-principal of the high school.

Failure to make a left-turn signal brought a $15 fine and 30-day driver's licence suspension for Kenneth N. Smith, 21, 2526 Bridge, in city police court today.

Court was told Smith's car crossed a centre line several times before it approached the turn.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas commented:

"I can't understand the way some of you young fellows carry on in the driving of cars."

Work on the $878,790 Queen Alexandra Solarium at Gordon Head is progressing "satisfactorily" and should be completed on schedule early next year, solarium building committee chairman David Angus said today.

Walls for the 64-bed ward have been erected and the ward roof is up, Mr. Angus said. Installation of cement foundation walls has not been completed.

"The work is going ahead right on time," he said. "It should be finished a little after the end of the year."

A pair of Camp Gordon Head soldiers each were fined $50 on charges of theft under $50 value when they appeared in city police court today.

Joseph A. Jones and Robert D. Charity were remanded for sentence today from last Monday.

They were charged with the theft of hub caps from a parked car.

New High-Waisted Skirts
For Back-to-School Wear

By PENNY SAVER

College and high school girls will be beginning to check over their wardrobes these days, and sorting out what they have to wear back to school. I've noticed some smart new ideas as I roamed through teen-age departments in local stores.

There's a new line in skirts—it's high and rib-hugging with no waistband, and to keep the skirt in place, there's wide button-on-shoulder straps.

Skirts in the new style come in fine-wale corduroy at $9.95. Colors are black, red, green and rust.

Corduroy 'jacket-skirts' (or shirt-jackets) are styled with smart new draw-string waists and have button cuffs. They are $8.95, in red, green or black, and could be worn with the high-waisted skirts or with plain back-pleated corduroy skirts in the same colors at $7.95.

I found some pretty slips today in drip-dry cotton. They come in pink, blue or white with dainty lace and eyelet embroidery edging.

Price is $3.99, and they come in tall and average lengths. Similar slips in white drip-dry cotton edged with nylon net and embroidery are $2.99.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Osborne, 3115 Rutledge Street, have announced the engagement of their only daughter, Margaret Merle, to John Rodney Wilson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Wilson, 3161 Orillia Street. The wedding will take place next Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church. Attending the bride will be her aunt, Mrs. M. Cannon, as matron of honor; Miss Diana Mills and Miss Connie Streeton, bridesmaids, and her cousin, Judy Napier, flower girl. Douglas Green will be best man, and ushers Gordon Osborne, George Payne and Wilfred Heal.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Selfish girls demands nuptial extravaganzas:

Would you please help put my daughter on the right track concerning her wedding next fall? She wants 10 bridesmaids, an equal number of ushers and a large breakfast. She also wants an evening reception for about 500 and that would include supper and an orchestra. My husband doesn't earn that kind of money, but we can't make our daughter see reason. Our niece had a huge wedding three years ago and her father is still paying for it.

Louise Davis answers:

Some day your daughter will realize that it doesn't pay to try to keep up with the Joneses, but I would hate to recommend a big wedding as a lesson. Does she think that she will have a social triumph? Does she realize that she is selfish and thoughtless by expecting her father to go into debt for all this extravagance that would last but a few hours? Doesn't she realize that the only real important thing is the marriage service and that all these frills are irrelevant and unnecessary under the circumstances? Does she realize that she and her young man may be getting off to a false start because she has lost her sense of values? Does she know that many popular girls from wealthy and prominent families have small and simple weddings because they want them that way and that those couples have a good chance of making their marriages happy and lasting ones simply because they have good sense? You should put your foot down hard on such a plan. There may be tantrums and tears, but blood is thicker than water and your daughter would readjust her thinking by necessity. She would be using very bad taste by having such a wedding and so would you by allowing it.

The postman rings not twice but many times at Unitarian Service Committee Headquarters, 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa. One of the USC's best friends, he sees that stray donations always reach their destination. Latest to arrive safely was addressed simply to "Needy Children's Fund, Ottawa," and is now on its way to help Korean children.

Clock Chimes Mozart Tune At His German Birthplace

Miss Sally Laundy, who has been touring Europe by car with Miss Doris Eisenhut, continues an account of her travels in letters to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Laundy, Queenswood Drive.

After an exciting exit from Berlin, the girls drove through Germany to Cologne and down the Rhine Valley.

Sally

"We stayed a night in Heidelberg and visited the castle where there is a magnificent view over the whole city. Then we went on to Munich, where the owner of a restaurant where we had a wonderful dinner turned out to be a former chief at the Empress Hotel!

High Mass in Milan Cathedral

"We reached Milan and visited the great cathedral where a very high mass was taking place—we nearly choked to death on the incense. We toured La Scala opera house, and visited the little shrine where Leonardo da Vinci's 'Last Supper' is painted right on the wall. Then we drove to Verona, Brescia and Padua.

"In Venice, we had to leave the car parked in a garage and take our baggage across on a ferry. We left the next day for Bologna and Florence.

"This was so far the most spectacular drive in Italy. The roads were very winding and the driving was slow, but we didn't want to hurry because the beautiful mountains and valleys were not to be missed. It was very hot in Florence—98 in the shade.

PAPERS LOST

"In Florence, our car was somehow broken into, though we had it locked, and all our papers, including international drivers' licenses, and my camera were taken.

"We had to see the British consul next morning. When we walked into his office, he recognized us from the pictures on our licenses—the thief had dropped them into a mailbox when he realized they were of no value to him."

They then visited Rome and Naples. "From Naples, we went to Sorrento and over to Capri where we visited the Blue Grotto. One has to get there in a small rowboat and in a calm sea, or the boat will be banged against the rocks."

They drove north again

"Then we went to Salzburg, Mozart's birthplace. The town clock chimes out one of his compositions three times a day."

The girls drove on into Austria and to Vienna.

"We perhaps obtained a drab view of Vienna, as it was pouring rain. It's so very old and grey, and I'm sure not the Vienna it once was. It was festival time there, but everything was so booked up we couldn't get tickets."

"We found the city very dirty, and the streets congested with traffic. At night, one sees a different aspect. The oldness and drabness are not seen and it is quite beautiful."

"From Vienna we drove to Radstadt, St. Johann, Kitzbühel, Schwaz and Innsbruck."

They visited Lichtenstein and Switzerland, then on to camp at Lake Maggiore and Lake Como in Italy.

through Genoa and Monaco and into Spain.

Here they stayed at the island beach resort of Ibiza.

"The beauty of the place is that there are very few people here in proportion to its size. We are staying here for just over $2 a day, which includes three marvelous meals a day, all service charges and tipping. We are in one of the two hotel annexes, right on the beach."

"Meals are very late—breakfast when you get up, lunch at 2:15, and dinner from 9:15 on. Then the night begins."

"Very sadly we left Ibiza, one of the high points of our trip, and went on to Barcelona."

They drove through Spain and into France, visiting the chateaux on the Loire River, Blois, Orleans and Fontainebleau.

Here Sally writes: "It was night when we arrived so we saw the lovely display of lights, then found a camping spot in the beautiful forest which was the hunting ground of Napoleon."

"Then we drove on to Paris. It's everything they say it is! We found a comfortable hotel in the artists' quarter on the Left Bank."

"I don't know where people get the idea that Paris—and France—is dirty. The countryside is charming and clean, and the cities and small villages are well kept. The roads are the next best to Germany, and that's saying something."

The two girls have now returned to London. Doris plans to come back soon to a job in Vancouver, while Sally has a job as X-ray technician in London and will stay longer.

Sheila Carstens Bride At St. John's Church

Baskets of pink and white gladioli decorated St. John's Church Saturday evening for the marriage of Sheila Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Carstens, Topp Avenue, and Cyril Edmund Nickols, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Nickols of Haney, B.C. The ceremony was solemnized by Rev. Canon G. Biddle.

The bride, wearing a floor-length gown of white nylon tulle and lace, walked up the aisle on the arm of her father to the organ music of Frederick Chubb. The bridegroom featured a lace bodice with sweetheart neckline outlined with shirred nylon, and the bride's fingertip veil of chantilly lace was worn by her mother at her wedding. She wore a coronet of seed pearls and iridescent sequins, and carried a bouquet of tawny gold roses and cascading cream gladioli.

Maid of honor, Miss Patricia Carstens, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, Miss Dale Elliott and Miss Elaine Hadfield, wore identical dresses of aqua brocade with matching chiffon draped at the neckline. Shrimp-pink feather hats and bouquets of shrimp-pink gladioli completed their outfits. Geoffrey Cory was best man, and Neil Holman and Charles Koester ushered.

Mrs. Carstens, mother of the bride, wore a dress of rose lace and crepe with matching jacket, and cream accessories, and a gardenia corsage. Mrs. Nickols, groom's mother, wore a navy blue dress, pink accessories and gardenia corsage.

Uplands Golf Club was scene of a reception, where baskets of white, shrimp and flame gladioli and pink and white snapdragons decorated the room.

DOE LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Promotion of world-wide sisterly love was advanced at the world Girl Guide centenary camp here Sunday.

Some 1,600 international Girl Guides attended "Guides' own" special spiritual services, held in each four sub-camps.

An air of friendship prevailed as the representatives of 46 countries attended services led by the Canadian Guides.

Anglican, Roman Catholic and Protestant interdenominational services were held outdoors. Nine Jewish Guides held their service at Doe Lake Synagogue. Those of Mormon, Christian Scientist and Moslem faiths held services in camp.

Following the services, all units held a campfire with the Mexicans stealing the show as they sang native folk songs and delighted campers with their rendition of the Mexican hat dance. Micmac campers were shown films depicting Indian legends.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other attractive prizes? Then Ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas by Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times. Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Linda Ann Salles, aged 10, of Splendora, Texas, for her question:

What Were the First Chickens Like?

Linda is interested in chickens for a very good reason. Her mother raises them. Mother and daughter are fascinated by the listings of the different breeds in the poultry catalogues. What a fine time they will have with Volume II of Andy's favorite encyclopedia. They will enjoy the article on poultry and admire the handsome pictures of the various breeds.

Nowadays there are about 100 different breeds of the domestic fowl. But there was a time, long, long ago, when the domestic fowl was unknown. We do not know who first thought of keeping chickens in coops or fenced yards. But we suspect that this labor-saving trick was discovered in Asia. For it is believed that our domestic chickens all descended from the red jungle fowl of India. This is a smallish bird, weighing no more than a young broiling chicken. What's more, it lays no more than a dozen eggs a year, all at one time. A good domestic fowl may weigh 16 pounds and a good layer produces 200 eggs through the year.

COUSIN TO PHEASANT

The little red ancestor of our chickens was a relative of the pheasant, the turkey and the lordly peacock. These birds are called Galliformes, a family name taken from the Latin word for chicken. They are all meaty birds with weak wings and sturdy legs. All of them are great scratchers and spend most of their time foraging for food on the ground. In the wild, they make tempting dinners for many meat hungry enemies. It is hard for them to survive. So the Galliformes usually lay large numbers of eggs to make sure some of their children will live to grow up.

The first domesticated fowl thrived in captivity. Fences did not bother them, for they had no wish to fly. Protected from their enemies, they grew fat and heavy. For some reason they began laying more eggs. Perhaps this was because their human friends kept removing the eggs one at a time, and the chickens were trying to build up a whole nest full. More likely, their owners chose the eggs of the best layers to set.

Children Defy Death In 'Chicken' Games

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Children flouting death in a new do or die "chicken" game dreamed up for "kicks" will find themselves in court so fast they will get all the kicks they want, police officials say. The game was apparently dreamed up by east London teenagers. Anyone can play and the rules are simple. All you have to do is sit on a railroad track while a highballing train bears down on you. The first to leap clear is "chicken."

Constable Laverne Kibler found four youths playing the game on the CNR line at Hale and Trafalgar. Two were 15, one 14 and the other 12. "Two were sitting on the tracks with a fast passenger train screaming down on them," he said. "They jumped clear at the last second. The first who moved was branded 'chicken.'"

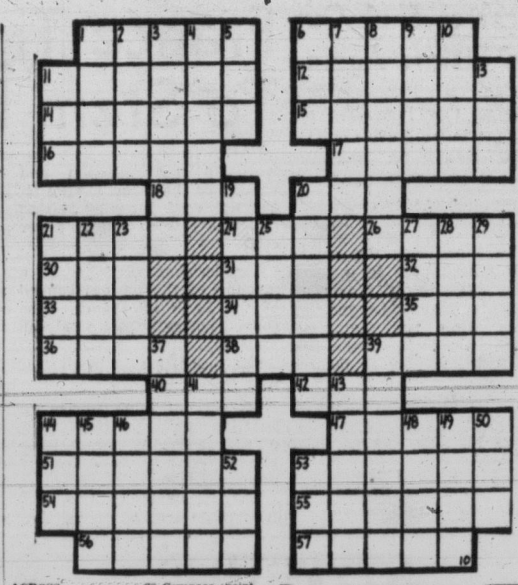

Another of the youths calmly rode his bicycle across the tracks in front of the hurtling express. Constable Kibler took the boys home and notified their parents.

Said Chief Earl Knight: "It's the first time I have heard of this new game. The police department won't tolerate it. Repetition will result in charges."

Aged Greybeard Leading Rebels

SHARJA, Trucial Oman, (UP) — This is the story of the little Imam who wasn't there. He is the figurehead around whom a broiling desert war in Oman is revolving. His tongue-twisting title of Imam of Oman is nothing compared to the confusion he has caused in official and pro-British circles.

The Imam, the title means spiritual leader—lives—some where in a remote sun-baked section of central Oman where fewer than a dozen Europeans have ever gone. Even some of these were disguised as Arabs for fear of losing their lives at the hands of fanatic nomadic tribes still living in the iron age by all reports.

The Imam is said to be an elderly greybeard deeply religious, but befuddled at the intrusion of modern politics into the picture.

The politics have been provided largely from Cairo and Saudi Arabia. He was elected Imam Ghaleb Ben Aly in 1954 with the support of the Beni Reyam, which is the single biggest tribe in the remote interior country. The tribe is headed by foxy old Suleiman Bin Hamyar, the self-styled "King of the Green Mountain."

While the aging Imam pored over his religious volumes, Suleiman and Ghaleb's brother Talib were busy setting off a revolution possibly with Saudi assistance.

When it came, it was promptly suppressed by the Sultan, the country's legitimate ruler. The Imam claimed non-involvement and the Sultan declared him in "protective custody." Ghaleb's uncle Moham-

General, Envoy Among Canoeists Hitting Trail

SASKATOON (CP) — Six prominent canoeists have completed a three-week trip through the wilderness of northern Saskatchewan tracing the trails of early voyageurs.

The canoeists include Eric W. Morse, Ottawa, national director of the Association of Canadian Clubs; Tyler Thompson, United States minister to Canada; Sigurd Olson, Ely, Minn., president of the National Parks Association of America; Maj. Gen. N. E. Rodger, Winnipeg, former vice-chief of the general staff; Dr. Omond Solandt, Montreal, vice-president of the CNR and Denis M. Cooligan, Ottawa, president of the Canadian Bank Note Company.

For the past several years they have been tracing the early voyageur trails from Montreal to Lake Athabasca.

COVER 2,000 MILES

At the conclusion of this year's excursion the six had covered about 2,000 miles of the old fur and explorer routes from Eastern Canada to the Prairies. Thompson and Morse were picked up at stony rapids on the eastern-most tip of Lake Athabasca Friday and flown to Saskatoon. The others remained to have a look at Uranium City and then fly on to Edmonton. They started their 450-mile

Poor Clothes No Park Ban Judge Rules

LONDON (Reuters) — A judge here has upheld a man's right to sit on a park bench whether he's ragged as a tramp or dressed fit to kill.

The case arose because Bill Corbett, sitting on a bench in Hyde Park, "in a filthy condition," refused to obey a policeman's order to get up and get out of the park.

Judge Geoffrey Raphael found that if regulations were fully enforced, "you will come to a position where police will permit only gentlemen with morning coats and grey toppers in Hyde Park."

Huge Plane Disintegrated in Crash

Scattered rubble is all that remains of a Maritime Central Airways DC-4 which crashed 15 miles southwest of Quebec City Sunday during a violent storm. The plane carried a party of former servicemen and their families home to Canada after a holiday in Britain. All 79 aboard perished. Troops today were searching for the bodies, believed thrown into the bush when the aircraft exploded. (AP Photo.)

Climber Rescued In Dramatic Feat

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP)—The huge rescue operation for a group of alpinists trapped on the north wall of the Eiger mountain was officially abandoned today.

The only survivor among the four climbers, Claudio Corti of Lecco, Italy, arrived at the Eiger glacier funicular station in a stretcher at 4 p.m. He was to be taken to Interlake hospital by special train.

The 90 volunteers from seven nations who took part in the rescue operation were ordered off the mountain by rescue chief Peter Frei, who said the three other members of the group undoubtedly were dead.

The four climbers have been on the mountain since Aug. 3 and became trapped on the steep face two or three days after they started the climb.

Blizzards halted rescue operations Sunday afternoon and today after Corti had been lifted 1,200 feet to the summit by a brave alpinist swinging at the end of winch-operated cable.

"To go down the wall in this much snow would be suicidal folly that would help no one," a guide said.

"No lives will be risked in order to bring dead men down from the north wall," Frei told a group of guides and alpinists at the glacier station.

Air and telescope observations of the other Italian trapped on the wall, Stefano Longhi, 44, also of Lecco, left no doubt that he died of exhaustion and exposure during the night. He had been injured by a rock fall earlier and remained suspended at the end of a rope some 300 feet below the other three since Thursday.

He was seen hanging face down, covered by snow and motionless all day today. His body may remain hanging there as long as the rope holds his weight.

The two German members of the group, Guenther Nordhuf, 27, and Goetz Meier, 26, apparently left the ledge they shared with Corti early Sunday morning in a desperate attempt to make their own way to the top. All trace of them has been lost. Meanwhile, other mountain accidents claimed the lives of 10 Austrian and German tourists in Innsbruck, Austria, and three Swiss alpinists at Kandersteg, Switzerland.

It cost $12,000 to conduct a strike vote among 32,000 B.C. coast lumber workers in June.

This amount was approved today by a cabinet order-in-council authorizing payment out of the provincial treasury.

The vote was conducted by the Labor Relations Branch of the Department of Labor.

Ex-Mayor Harrison Seriously Injured

Former Victoria mayor Claude Harrison will undergo a delicate eye operation Thursday following a Malahat bush accident.

Mrs. Harrison said of the injury, "It is quite serious." No visitors are permitted.

The accident occurred Friday.

Mr. Harrison, who is 71, was clearing underbrush on his Malahat property. He was using a large set of cutting shears when a sharp-pointed branch apparently pierced his right eye.

He was able to make his way to his car and drive one and a half miles to his secluded mountain home.

"It must have taken tremendous courage," said his wife.

'EVERYTHING BLOWN TO BITS' Witness Describes Horrifying Scene

By FRANCOIS DUSSAULT
ISSOUDUN, Que. (CP)—Everything seems to have been blown to bits—the plane, everyone aboard and every piece of clothing.

Wreckage is strewn everywhere. There are five large holes in the muddy field, each about 15 feet deep. Four of the holes apparently contain the plane's motors. The fifth has a piece of the fuselage in it. There is about a foot of water—green water—in each hole.

Of the 73 passengers and six crew members who went down with the aircraft all I could find during the time I was there was the left forearm of a woman.

The crash occurred in a clearing, on the edge of a heavily-wooded area. I was told a number of bodies probably were tossed into the woods. No effort was made to find them Sunday night. The water is ankle deep and the bush is thick.

The plane seems to have been wrecked by a tremendous explosion. The largest single piece of aircraft I saw was only about

WRECK SINKING INTO MUSKEG

OTTAWA (CP)—Wreckage of a crashed plane in which 79 persons died near Quebec City Sunday is slowly sinking into water-soaked muskeg, Deputy Transport Minister Baldwin said today.

He said a major pumping operation may be necessary to reach the wreckage for use in an investigation launched by the department. Craters containing plane sections were filling with water.

Grim News Crushes Relatives

TORONTO (CP)—About 100 relatives and friends of people aboard the Maritime Central Airways plane that crashed near Quebec City Sunday waited in vain for the arrival of the ill-fated airplane at Malton airport here.

A posted announcement in the airport waiting room told them first that the plane was overdue. Later, they were ushered into the airport's immigration room, where an MCA official announced that the plane with 79 passengers and crew aboard, had crashed, with no survivors.

The announcement shocked some into silence, others to tears and still others to hysteria. Some frantically tried to grab the passenger list from the MCA official, Ted Mullins, who made the announcement.

Eric Thomlinson of Burlington said that most persons in the room had no inkling of what was coming. They just knew that the plane was overdue.

One man said he thought he had been called into the immigration room because the plane had arrived. "I was looking for my wife," he said, "when this chap got up and announced the plane had crashed and there were no survivors. Just like that."

Women began to cry. Some shrieked hysterically. Men collapsed, white-faced, into chairs. "They can't be dead—not my dad and mum," one thin-faced girl screamed.

Debris, Bodies Scattered Deep Into Bushland

(See Page 2 for Death List)

By GUY RONDEAU

ISSOUDUN, Que. (CP)—Seventy-nine persons died Sunday in Canada's worst plane crash when a big DC-4 dug deep into a swamp and tore apart, leaving flame-singed wreckage scattered over a wide area near this community 15 miles southwest of Quebec City.

While available evidence pointed to lightning as one possible cause of the mid-afternoon tragedy, investigators set about an inquiry. The crash eclipsed the TCA accident last December when 62 persons died against a peak in B.C.

There was no official word available on what might have doomed the Maritime Central Airways plane, inbound for Toronto from London. Aboard were homing vacationers, including many former British servicemen. The plane had been chartered by an Ontario veterans' association and was on course.

All but two of the passengers — a Charlottetown father and his five-year-old son — were from Ontario. Issoudun villagers told of hearing a "frightening blast" as the plane plunged into the swamp beside thick bushes.

It was last seen whirling into the advance clouds of a vicious thunderstorm. Clothing, passports and parts of bodies were strewn over acres of the swamp.

The body of an infant lay near the empty pilot's seat and a fragment of a navigation map. At another spot, was a human arm.

No other bodies were immediately found. The plane left Keflavik, Iceland, early Sunday and checked in by radio at Moncton, N.B., Mont Joli, Que., and Quebec City.

Minutes after passing Quebec, it crashed. An air force plane from Trenton, Ont., dropped three members of a para-rescue squad which, sent back the brief message: "There are no survivors."

Officials Have No Idea as to Cause

MCA officials here said they had "absolutely no idea of what caused the plane to crash."

The aircraft was one of three DC-4's used for overseas charter service. Regular MCA service is mostly in the maritime provinces.

Canon Alexandre DeBlair, parish priest of Ste. Croix, about five miles from the crash scene, saw the plane fly into the storm. Later, he related, "the nuns who work in the presbytery said they had seen a plane flying very low."

"Seconds later there had been a frightening blast. But the nuns did not think it was the plane. They thought it was a highway crash."

Farmer Evariste Charest said he heard a sound "like tin banging against trees" then a loud explosion.

The aircraft was piloted by Norman Ramsay of Montreal, who had been with MCA two years.

The 37-year-old pilot's licence was suspended for six months late in 1954 after a transport department board of inquiry blamed him for "negligence" in the crash of a TCA Super Constellation near Brampton, Ont.

However, MCA described him as a "good, well-trained pilot." The main part of the plane was pitched into the bush 500 feet ahead of the motors. Clothing and equipment hung in trees.

Bodies Apparently Thrown Into Bush

Police believed several bodies might have been thrown into the bush but postponed a search until today.

The afternoon storm poured several inches of rain into the swamp. Searchers worked ankle deep in water and mud. One twisted propeller was found a quarter-mile away.

The first to report from the crash scene were the three RCAF paratroopers—Sgts. Jack Clydon, Don Nivans and Al Smith, all of Trenton.

Alan Love and his son Peter,

5, of Charlottetown, were talked into taking the flight by relatives in England. They had believed it would stop at Gander and planned to transfer there to another plane. The DC-4 didn't stop and the Loves died in the wreck.

The two stewardesses—Anne Marie Harvey, 23, and Charlotte LeBlanc, 28, both of Moncton—had joined Maritime Central only three months ago.

The illness of her husband probably saved the life of Mrs. Hilda Ashton of Toronto.

First reports had included her name in the passenger list. But a check of her home disclosed she had flown home late last month after attending a family reunion in Sittingbourne, Kent, because her husband had been taken to hospital with a serious lung condition.

Famed Painter Of Bird Life To Make Trip

Combining pleasure with business, Victoria's famed bird and flower painter, 19-year-old Fenwick Lansdowne, is departing Sept. 6 on a trip to New York.

He plans to be away three weeks and says the journey is also in the nature of a field trip.

He will be "looking around the countryside," in his own words. Lansdowne, who now produces most of his delicate, life-like paintings for an Eastern publishing firm, first came to national notice when critics enthused over an exhibition of his work at the Royal Ontario Museum.

McLean's Magazine, which published an article on him and eight pages of reproductions last spring, plans to present a further portfolio of his paintings in a forthcoming issue.

"Fen" Lansdowne has had no formal art education other than instruction given him by his mother.

Prince Breaks Royal Silence Denies Car Driving Charge

LONDON (AP)—A young prince broke traditional royal silence Sunday by answering his critics.

Fifteen-year-old Prince Michael of Kent firmly denied he drove an automobile. He is two years under the legal age for licensed drivers.

"It wasn't me at all," the young prince told the chief of police on the Isle of Wight.

Michael, the son of the Duchess of Kent and eighth in line to the throne, was at the Isle for the Cowes Regatta all last week with Prince Philip. Some islanders said they saw Michael driving the car of Uffa Fox, noted yacht designer who is a close friend of Prince Philip.

Police Chief P. A. Paddon told reporters: "Prince Michael was interviewed on board the royal yacht Britannia. He denied he court."

Meanwhile, Queen Elizabeth maintained her regal silence to criticism of her and the royal fishing holiday—same as always.

Reunion Breakfast

THEY SAY Aunt Ethel's dead, and that Uncle Robert is quite broken up. Poor, rotund, Uncle Robert—a where's-me-bacon man. He used to call Ethel "Boaty," meaning "Beauty," in the days of long ago.

Ruth

And, at this husbandly endearment, all the horrid little nephews and nieces, used to wink at one another with hardly-hidden glee. For, in their eyes, Ethel was no beauty but the new aunt who was definitely queer.

She fascinated them with her thin, sallow face, her burning eyes, and her swiftly changing phobias and enthusiasms.

For a time, pork in any shape or form was anathema to Ethel.

"No bacon or sausage for me, Mother Parnell," she said with cold finality when the scattered members of the family had come home for an anniversary reunion, and were sitting at the breakfast table.

"Oh Ethel dear," said her mother-in-law with genuine concern. "And I had them specially because I know Robert is so fond of them."

"The pig is an unclean animal," Ethel said a shade too fiercely. "Living on offal and refuse. It's unhealthy to eat their flesh. We're warned against it in the Bible."

"That was in a hot climate, Ethel," said Carola who privately thought that Robert must have taken leave of his senses to marry such a woman. "No one could possibly call England hot."

"Pigs are unclean," Ethel repeated. "It depends on how they're kept," said her sister-in-law, Mary, who'd married a prosperous farmer from Wiltshire. "If they're properly kept, then pigs are clean."

Little Michael, Mary's son, sensed the argument and tension in the air. And, anxious to contribute his bit to the excitement, he banged his porridge spoon upon the table.

"Pigs IS clean," he shrieked with a hint of tears in his voice. "Say it again, Mummy. Pigs IS clean!"

"Mary," hinted Mrs. Parnell, "Perhaps Michael had better leave the room until he's quietened down."

"I'm sorry, Mother," Mary said, with a furious sideways glance at Ethel. "He's never like this at home. But he's apt to get excited and be upset by strange people."

"Another sausage, please, Mother," said Carola. "And that rasher of bacon if Ethel really feels that she'd be soiled by taking it."

"Carola," her mother said warningly.

"I think if you'll excuse me," said Ethel, rising from the table.

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Parnell.

If only families didn't fight she thought, as Ethel stalked from the dining room into the hall where Mary was shushing Michael who was still insisting on the cleanliness of pigs. Individually, she loved her children and their husbands and wives, and could get on with any of them, though it sometimes was an effort. But, assembled, they really were a trial!

"When two or three are gathered together," she murmured.

"What did you say, Mother?" asked 16-year-old Daphne, who'd kept quiet all this time because she was taking mental notes for the story she was writing in a battered black exercise book, hidden carefully in her bedroom.

IMPOSE OWN IDEAS

'Screwballs Running Education' Charged

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)—Changes in the Canadian standard of living, says a political economist, have led to changes in the Canadian mind. More cultural satisfactions were being sought.

Professor Ian H. MacDonald of the University of Toronto told the final session of the week-long Couchiching Conference on International Affairs at Lake Couchiching, near Orillia.

"Our standard of living... has changed considerably over the years in size and relative content; it is tending to include more non-material, security-oriented services such as life and health insurances and soul-satisfying services such as travel and education."

There are signs, he said, that consumers are attempting to "keep ahead of the Joneses" in the recent minority markets of foreign-built cars, Scandinavian furniture and high-fidelity record players.

Professor MacDonald suggested the greatest gains in the Canadian standard of living are to be made in the area of things which are consumed or valued in common, such as protection of wild life, conservation of resources and countryside, beautification of cities and protection of areas for recreation.

A similar aspect of the Canadian way of life was described by Michael MacKenzie, a Toronto business executive.

IMPORTANT POINTS
Comfort and leisure—giving qualities are the most important characteristics of Canada's standard of living, he said.

Professor R. Grant Davey, head of the University of Alberta's physical economy department, said a "bunch of screwballs" are running education throughout Canada and are imposing their ideas upon the teaching profession.

"If I had to conform to this sort of thing I wouldn't stay," he said.

Dr. Davey was one of a panel that dealt with specific questions prepared at round-table discussions.

Red Chinese Trade Boost Outlook Poor

PEIPING (Reuters)—Japanese and European businessmen visiting Peiping are pessimistic about the prospects of opening up large-scale trade with Communist China.

They say Chinese trading corporations are placing few orders until completion of details for China's second five-year plan, due to start next January.

These details will not be ready before the end of the harvest in October. If present economic difficulties persist, they may not be agreed on finally till early next year. They probably will not be published before the meeting of the National People's Congress parliament next June.

Observers here believe businessmen who delay their trips until late autumn or early spring may find the Chinese in a more certain frame of mind.

TOKYO (Reuters)—Two light-house keepers off northern Japan were reported suffering from a serious blood disorder Sunday after drinking radioactive rainwater. An official spokesman said a doctor found the men "drinking and washing in rainwater supplies 'heavily impregnated with radioactivity.'"

Clay Soil Requires Early Start

Gardens consisting of stiff clay soil are almost as numerous around Victoria as those with sandy soil.

The owners of the clay soil are usually the ones who despair of ever being able to accomplish their objectives in gardening.

When making a start it is well to know that trees, shrubs and flowering perennials will be slow to become established in such a soil. Once the roots have taken hold, however, they make sturdy, satisfactory growth.

Providing the situation is not likely to be poorly drained during the winter, a start may be made in September by planting perennials, followed by spring flowering bulbs in October, and trees and shrubs as they become dormant and available from the nurseries from October on.

Preparation of planting areas can be started even now, by digging or tilling and removing all perennial weeds roots. Dandelions, thistles, couch grass and bindweed will come up year after year if not removed.

The recent light rains have made clay soil workable earlier than usual this season, and if a plan is made on paper first, much work can be done in the digging of holes for shrubs and trees. Lightly pile the soil back into the hole, leaving it in a mound.

Three-foot wooden stakes placed upright in the proposed shrub and tree holes will help in marking them for future use, and also give a faint clue as to the appearance of the place when planted. A wooden name tag tacked to the stakes with the name of the proposed plant is a further aid.

Be sure to leave sufficient space for the larger growing subjects; the gaps may be planted temporarily with bulbs or perennials.

Typical English Meal

LONDON—Chatting with some Canadian tourists, we got onto the subject of English food. Since their knowledge of it had been gained almost exclusively by eating in ordinary inexpensive restaurants, they were naturally critical.

The consensus was that English food was heavy and uninspired.

They agreed with Margaret Halsey, who in her book about England With Malice Towards Some said that she was convinced that English food had to be jacked up beforehand so that the plates could be slid under it.

On the score of weight there is no argument. The English have to provide themselves with some good solid fuel to counteract raw climate and ill-heated buildings. But as regards everyday restaurant food being uninspired, I think that's a criticism that can be made on both sides of the Atlantic.

I've been trying to think up what could be called a typical English meal—in other words, a meal which when laid before you would tell you that you were eating in England and nowhere else.

On these terms, I would say this is the typical English meal:

Windsor Soup. This is a thick brown soup of no particular flavor, it just sort of tastes brown. Why the Royal Family has been blamed for this, nobody quite knows.

Roast Beef, with Yorkshire Pudding, Brussels Sprouts and Roast Potatoes.

Salad. This is rarely taken with hot food but is included here because the English have their very own idea of what makes a nice salad—half a hard-boiled egg, a piece of tomato and two slices of cold beetroot sitting on a leaf of limp lettuce.

Steamed Pudding, with golden syrup and custard.

That's a meal you'll encounter every day of the year in Lyons cafes, pub dining rooms and provincial hotels. Filling and cheap—you can still get it for the equivalent of 50 cents.

Now, what could be classed as the typical Canadian meal? How about this:

Fruit Cocktail. This is something you don't come across as a regular first course in other countries. In England and any other place I've been, chopped up fruit is exclusively a dessert.

Creamed Chicken, with mashed potatoes served with an ice cream scoop, and peas-and-carrots. (Oh, those Rotary luncheons!)

Salad. Pears, chopped celery, nuts and mayonnaise on crisp lettuce. One of the first strange things that new citizens in Canada must get used to is finding fruit in a salad.

Pie a la Mode. The expression "a la mode" meaning with ice cream on top is unique to your side of the Atlantic.

It is meaningless to a waiter here and Canadian visitors who insist on it find themselves served with pie and ice cream on separate plates and they must do their own mixing, while the waiter looks on horrified.

U.S. Tax Aid Urged For Education Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 35-member educational committee appointed by President Eisenhower recommended Saturday that parents of college students in the United States be given income tax help toward meeting the soaring costs of higher education.

Greater tax benefits would go to those least able to afford college costs.

The committee on education beyond the high school level held off from proposing federal scholarships for the present but called strongly for a federally supported experimental work-study program.

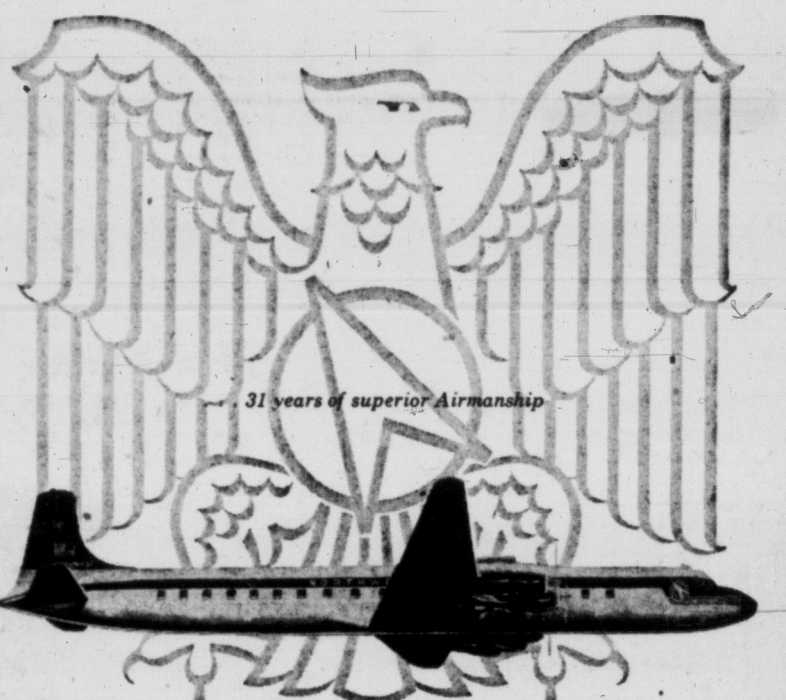

It said such a program would enable "25,000 to 30,000 notably able and needy students" to go to college every year.

Most leading educational organizations have endorsed the federal scholarship idea, but chairman Devereux C. Josephs told a press conference the committee believed work-study would be a more efficient use of the government's money.

"It would help the student and at the same time get things done that the college needs done," said Josephs, who is board chairman of the New York Life Insurance Company.

'Coca Cola Navy' Days Recalled in Mine sweeper Deal

By PETE LOUDON

Many old sailors, some of them Victorians, will suffer memory switches when 10 old minesweepers are handed over soon to Turkey under the NATO plan.

One of them, HMCS Swift Current, gave first taste of salt water to many who trained on the East Coast in 1942.

Swift Current, at that time, shared a jetty at Pictou, N.S., with HMCS Kamloops. The two were affectionately known as the "Coca Cola" navy.

They went out each morning into the placid waters of Northumberland Strait and came home each night. The supply trucks always left a load of "coke" on the jetty. The name came naturally and stuck hard.

Except for a small permanent crew, the appellation did

TOO BUSY

They only stopped aboard two weeks for final touches to their pre-operational training—and they were kept too busy to care. Men were needed on the convoy routes.

Swift Current was the ship where unsalted tars still carried a paper bag when they went on watch for fear of mal de mer. So crowded with trainees was she, that hammocks hung even in the tiller flats where oakum and soft soap of bos'n's stores more than scented the air.

It was the ship where "swinging the lead" was a daily chore. The hand line was swung overside to determine depths. The sailor learned to throw a heaving line, rig collision mats, stand lookout, take a trick at the helm and holystone a deck.

Swift Current picked her officers and petty officers for their ability to teach unforgettable lessons. There was the PO who would ask a sentry for his revolver. When it was handed over the recruit was blasted for ever letting it out of his possession.

The four-inch gun crew would be piped away to other duties and the sight-setter would stand fast to guard his gun. A burly lieutenant would approach and fiddle with the

7-FOOT WING SPAN

Albatross Sighted At Mill Bay

A rarely seen "diomedea exulans" in the order procellariiformes was spotted and nearly captured by two men in the Saanich Inlet Saturday.

The long-sounding names stand for "albatross" in English. It's the world's largest bird which frequents only the open ocean.

The big fellow, with a wing span of over seven feet, caused considerable excitement when first seen swimming near Mill Bay.

APPEARED SICK

"I never saw such a big bird," said Mr. Moss. "I think he was sick. We got within a few feet of him and then he took off."

Rene Tidmus of Sidney, also reported seeing the bird and feeding it with bread crusts. It came within a few feet of his boat, he said.

Charlie Giguere, museum biologist, said it was most unusual to see an albatross in inland waters. Its a bird of the open Pacific, he said, which breeds on Hawaiian Islands, 3,000 miles from British Columbia.

Its a famous flyer. It rarely flaps its wings, but glides for days low over rolling seas.

Slow Driving On Highways Protested

A campaign against slow drivers on main highways—particularly Pat Bay Highway—is being organized by directors of Victoria Automobile Club.

As a result of numerous complaints, the club has appointed a committee to visit heads of police departments in Victoria, Esquimalt, Saanich and Sidney. Police will be asked to enforce legislation against drivers who impede traffic by driving too slowly and hugging the middle of the road.

"Many motorists do not know there is a law against obstructing traffic by driving at slow speeds," George Warren, secretary of Victoria Automobile Club, said today.

"And many do not seem to realize that if they wish to travel slowly they should keep to the right hand side of the road."

sights. The hapless guardian would be spun on his ear for "letting" the officer touch it.

Swift Current worked with a British submarine which submerged and towed a buoy. Green Asdic operators, unable to see the buoy, searched for underwater sounds.

Graduated from Swift Current, the new men or "jeeps" doffed their white hats and from then on wore blue, like all other wartime sailors.

Alma Mater to the men who later went to war at sea, she carries a fine record to Turkey. May they treat her well.

450-Mile Walk For Centennial

45-Mile Okanagan Swim Also in Planning Stage

A 45-mile mass swim on Okanagan Lake is under consideration by the B.C. Centennial Committee as a 1958 project, committee chairman L. J. Wallace said today.

The swim, down the lake from Kelowna to Penticton, has never been completed.

A number of swimmers, including the first person to conquer Juan de Fuca Strait, Bert Thomas, have tried. Vancouver housewife Mrs. Ann Meraw will make another solo attempt this week.

Mr. Wallace said another suggestion being considered is to stage a 450-mile walkathon across the province.

The mass walk probably would follow the historic Denny trail, from the Alberta border to Vancouver.

Both the mass swim and walkathon will be placed before the centennial committee board of directors for decision.

NAVAL SHOW

One of the biggest spectacles planned for the centennial celebration, an international naval review, is moving closer to finalization, Mr. Wallace said.

Invitations have been issued through the department of external affairs and Royal Canadian Navy at Ottawa to Commonwealth countries, the United States, Spain and Mexico.

It is hoped that about 30 warships will rendezvous in the Strait of Juan de Fuca for the review.

On the proposed visit to the province by Princess Margaret, Mr. Wallace said he hopes that an official confirmation announcement will be made within the next two months.

Reports that the Royal visit is already a certainty have been denied by Buckingham Palace.

Times' Church Columnist Dies at 72

Widely-read and respected Times' church columnist for almost two years, Mrs. Ethel Tull, 72, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday.

With her weekly church page column "You Said To Me," Mrs. Tull offered a Sunday message of help and comfort for the troubled.

In her final column July 27 before she was taken to hospital, Mrs. Tull stressed again her recurrent theme of "living by the guidance of God and checking every thought and act with the requirements of the Sermon on the Mount—absolute honesty, purity, unselfishness and love."

Because these four principles governed her own life, Mrs. Tull was able to give quiet help to the many persons who phoned or called on her at her home.

ST. MARK'S

When she moved with her husband to Victoria in 1951, Mrs. Tull joined St. Mark's Anglican Church, and served in the women's auxiliary and as a parish visitor.

"She was a most remarkable person," Canon Robert Willis, St. Mark's rector, said, "a woman who was highly respected and beloved by everybody."

Mrs. Tull was born in Yorkshire, England, and came to Canada in 1907. She lived for several years in Courtenay, where she joined the Moral Re-Armament Group.

RAN SCHOOL

She also operated a business school in the up-Island centre.

Mrs. Tull is survived by the widower Frederick William, at home, 339 Niagara; one son, Eric Harold, London, Ont.; three grandchildren, and one sister and two brothers in England.

Canon Willis will officiate at the funeral service in St. Mark's Church Thursday at 2 p.m.

Interment will follow at Royal Oak Burial Park. Funeral arrangements are in the charge of McCall Brothers. In lieu of flowers, the family has asked that donations be given to the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Rites Wednesday For Ex-Athlete, Eagles Official

Thomas R. Rickinson, chief steward and member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie No. 12, died Sunday at the age of 59.

Mr. Rickinson had lived in Victoria for 30 years and was well-known as a former player and manager of a soccer team in Victoria West. He was born in Darlington, England.

Mr. Rickinson also served in the Canadian Army during the First World War and was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Victoria Lodge, No. 1.

Surviving are the widow Agnes, at home, 1016 Balmoral; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Agnes Rickinson, three grandchildren, and two brothers, Ernest and Stanley, all of Victoria.

Funeral service, under auspices of Aerie No. 12, will be held at Sands Mortuary, Wednesday at 4 p.m. Cremation will follow.

A 73-year-old man who was knocked down by a car while on his way to take part in a square dance was awarded general damages of $2,000 in a judgment handed down today in B.C. Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane said the man, Peter Thompson, was knocked down by a car while crossing Douglas Street near Hillside Avenue on Oct. 26, 1956.

Arena Profit $26,656; One of Smallest

Victoria Memorial Arena today reported an operation profit of $26,656—one of the smallest in the arena's seven-year history.

For the first time, the arena was unable to pay the city the $25,000 annual return on investment.

The amount was reduced this year by $3,632 spent on new equipment. Profits since 1950 have ranged from $25,880 in 1950 to $60,892 in 1954.

Last year's profit was $29,303. The serious drop at that time was blamed on television.

MONTÉ ROBERTS

According to Time magazine, Mood Music is the big thing in the record industry these days.

The trend is toward music designed to aid and abet certain situations which occur in the lives of men and women. Mood music started, as does most music, with the accent on romance. Albums such as Music for Lovers Only, Music to Change Her Mind, pointed the way to greater things.

And now the greater things are upon us. There are albums called Music for Meditation, Music for Gracious Living, Music for Courage and Confidence, Music for the Expectant Mother, and Music for Washing and Ironing.

(Honest, I am not imagining any of these titles, so help me Mantovani. They are for real.)

My own opinion is, the music industry is to be highly commended for the start it has made on catering to our assorted moods.

But I agree with Time magazine that the industry could go further. Not yet in the catalogue, Time complains, are Music for Boozing and Music to Soothe Your Hangover, Music to Shave By, Music for the Analyst's Couch, Music to Beat Your Wife By, and Music to Spoil Your Taste for Music.

And in addition, I have some nominations of my own, for record albums which, I am sure, would enjoy astounding sales in this area.

In fact, I plan to set up a new business to produce mood music especially suited to the characteristics of Victoria and environs.

I have already started work on the basic arrangements for an album to be called Music for Drowning Out Anguished Cries of Merchants Objecting to One Way Streets. For this I am considering an adaptation of the 1812 Overture, with Spike Jones and 4th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery.

And, For Almost Swimming Juan de Fuca Strait, I am asking Lawrence Walk to work with me in his liquid fashion on a version of How Deep is the Ocean?

I haven't decided on the orchestra, but, for Music for Watching the Garbage Scow go by, what better than Red Falls in the Sunset?

Music for Protesting against Arboreal Amputations should feature Woody Herman and they Cut Down the Old Pine Tree.

An album in which I take a personal interest is Music for Attempting to Sneak an Extra Minute on the Parking Meter without the Commissionaire's Catching You. The Music? Me and My Shadow, of course.

I think there is a future for mood music, and am looking forward to an album called Music for Being in a Mood for Music.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Veteran CCF campaigner, former MLA for Saanich and well-known high school teacher, Frank Snowsall was honored with his family at a going-away party recently. Over 100 CCF members and friends attended the event at Douglas Hall. A presentation was made by Saanich CCF Association and the women's council. Mr. Snowsall will move to Prince George as vice-principal of the high school.

Failure to make a left-turn signal brought a $15 fine and 30-day driver's licence suspension for Kenneth N. Smith, 21, 2326 Bridge, in city police court today.

Court was told Smith's car crossed a centre line several times before it approached the turn.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas commented:

"I can't understand the way some of you young fellows carry on in the driving of cars."

Work on the $878,790 Queen Alexandra Solarium at Gordon Head is progressing "satisfactorily" and should be completed on schedule early next year, solarium building committee chairman David Angus said today.

Walls for the 64-bed ward have been erected and the ward roof is up, Mr. Angus said. Installation of cement foundation walls has not been completed.

"The work is going ahead right on time," he said. "It should be finished a little after the end of the year."

A pair of Camp Gordon Head soldiers each were fined $50 on charges of theft under $50 value when they appeared in city police court today.

Joseph A. Jones and Robert D. Charity were remanded for sentence today from last Monday.

They were charged with the theft of hub caps from a parked car.

Haultain residents today asked civic and B.C. Electric officials to change a bus route where they say vibrations are knocking clocks and pictures from walls of homes.

Spokesman H. J. Price, 2574 Victor, wrote city council. He said after a petition went to the city the B.C. Electric in 1947 promised buses would reduce speed to 15 miles per hour in the shake area.

Bus drivers have since forgotten, he stated. Now vibrations have worsened and the only solution, a new road bed was "quite impossible" residents realized.

The obvious move would be to reroute the Haultain bus to Bay Street, the residents believe.

Truck driver Cecil James Stewardson, 4266 Dieppe, whose vehicle ran away on Swartz Bay ferry dock last week causing extensive damage, was fined $10 and $550 costs in Sidney RCMP court Saturday.

He was charged with leaving his truck unattended with the engine running. It slipped its emergency brake as Stewardson walked unloosed a steward, rolled into two cars, then pushed a small truck and a telephone kiosk off the side of the dock onto a rocky beach.

The Playfair Queen of Port Angeles, Miss Sheryl Robinson, and 11 of her ambassadors will call on Mayor Percy Scurrell at the city hall at 2 p.m. next Friday.

She will formally invite the Mayor and all citizens of Victoria to take part in Port Angeles' Playfair tourist festival, opening next week.

Heather Morgan, a student at Oak Bay High School, has been awarded first honorable mention for the Bliss Carman award for ballad or lyric poetry at the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Heather, now in Grade 12, wrote her poem "Left Erickson Discovers America" while she was in Grade 11.

Minor damage to stove and woodwork was caused by a fire in Around the Clock Grill, 937 Yates, Sunday at 4.15 p.m. Fire department said grease caught fire when it became overheated.

Steel for Point Ellice Bridge is expected to begin arriving later this week.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said today the progress of the bridge is "on schedule." Opening is expected in early November.

Montreal Mayor Sends Amyot Good Luck Wire

"Can you repeat your channel exploit?"

This challenge was wired to swimmer Jacques Amyot today on the eve of his attempt to beat Juan de Fuca for the glory of his hometown Quebec City and all of French Canada.

Jean Drapeau, mayor of Montreal, wired a good luck message for "the most complete success" to the 32-year-old draftsman and the request for a smashing victory similar to Amyot's conquest of the English Channel last year in 13 hours and two minutes.

11 HOURS

Amyot drops into the water off Ediz Hook at 8 a.m. Tuesday and begins stroking for Victoria in an attempt to cross the strait by 7 p.m., 11 hours after the start.

He was to leave for Port Angeles this afternoon with his trainer, Raymond Roy, aboard the 75-foot tug Lady Marjory, skippered by Capt. Rolfe Robinson, that is to shepherd his solo attempt.

Amyot, whose assault on the 18.3-mile stretch of tide-ripped water was financed by public subscription in Quebec City, is making the try after applying too late for inclusion in the Jaycee mass swim.

LOW TIDES

"The tides will be very low tomorrow but I don't know about the weather," Mr. Roy said.

"Amyot will do his best," he promised.

However, if he doesn't succeed because of the strong current, a second attempt will be made.

"But if it's the cold water, then we won't try again."

Circular V.I. Route Chamber Aim

A circular road linking Port Hardy with all the main cities of Vancouver Island will be urged by a delegation from the Associated Chambers of Commerce in a meeting with Premier Bennett and his cabinet on Aug. 20.

"We appreciate the progress that is being made in the development of West Coast roads," Chamber secretary Arnold Webb said today.

"But we wish to urge on the government that the ultimate aim should be a highway encircling the whole of the island."

Mr. Webb attended a meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce at Nanaimo this afternoon.

B.C. Pays $1,000 To Housekeeper

N.Y. Times Sees 'Charm' In Hanging Flower Baskets

Victoria's lamp-post flower baskets have come to the attention of the New York Times, which says they have "charm."

On the page devoted to gardens, writer Sonya Evans devotes a whole column to the 550 beautiful baskets.

She tells the history of the baskets, first hung in 1937 to mark the city's 75th anniversary, and of the varieties of flowers used, which include ivy-vine, geraniums, fuchsias, petunias and lobelias. She even devotes several paragraphs to the types of fertilizer found most suitable.

makes is that Allentown, Pa., has used cast iron brackets attached to lamp posts for hanging baskets since the 1920s. In addition, Norfolk, Va., has placed about 50 flower baskets and 100 flower boxes on public buildings this year.

The Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau here receives frequent requests for information concerning the unique baskets.

SHOPPING GUIDE

New High-Waisted Skirts
For Back-to-School Wear

By PENNY SAVER

College and high school girls will be beginning to check over their wardrobes these days, and sorting out what they have to wear back to school. I've noticed some smart new ideas as I roamed through teen-age departments in local stores.

There's a new line in skirts—it's high and rib-hugging with no waistband, and to keep the skirt in place, there's wide button-on shoulder straps.

Skirts in the new style come in fine-wale corduroy at $9.95. Colors are black, red, green and rust.

Corduroy jacket-shirts (or shirt-jackets) are styled with the smart new draw-string waists and have button cuffs. They are $8.95, in red, green or black, and could be worn with the high-waisted skirts or with plain back-pleated corduroy skirts in the same colors at $7.95.

I found some pretty slips to-day in drip-dry cotton. They come in pink, blue or white with dainty lace and eyelet embroidery edging.

Price is $3.99, and they come in tall and average lengths. Similar slips in white drip-dry cotton edged with nylon net and embroidery are $2.99.

FUCHSIA SALE

If your garden needs a bit more color for the coming months, you'll find fuchsias a good buy right now. I found them in brilliant bloom, complete with pots for just 49 cents. They're a good investment as they'll come up again year after year.

More and more home-owners are decorating the fronts of their houses or a tree on their lawn with one or two hanging baskets of flowers.

You can buy a basket ready to hang with a fuchsia plant packed in moss for $4.95. The huge plants come in a choice of many shades of pink, mauve and red.

To keep your fuchsia thriving, you can buy a tin of special food for them at 80 cents.

I'll be happy to tell you where I shopped today if you call me at 2-3131.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Selfish girls demands nuptial extravaganzas:

Would you please help put my daughter on the right track concerning her wedding next fall? She wants 10 bridesmaids, an equal number of ushers and a large breakfast. She also wants an evening reception for about 500 and that would include supper and an orchestra. My husband doesn't earn that kind of money, but we can't make our daughter see reason. Our niece had a huge wedding three years ago and her father is still paying for it.

Louise Davis answers:

Some day your daughter will realize that it doesn't pay to try to keep up with the Joneses, but I would hate to recommend a big wedding as a lesson. Does she think that she will have a social triumph? Does she realize that she is selfish and thoughtless by expecting her father to go into debt for all this extravagance that would last but a few hours? Doesn't she realize that the only real important thing is the marriage service and that all these frills are irrelevant and unnecessary under the circumstances? Does she realize that she and her young man may be getting off to a false start because she has lost her sense of values? Does she know that many popular girls from wealthy and prominent families have small and simple weddings because they want them that way and that those couples have a good chance of making their marriages happy and lasting ones simply because they have good sense? You should put your foot down hard on such a plan. There may be tantrums and tears, but blood is thicker than water and your daughter would readjust her thinking by necessity. She would be using very bad taste by having such a wedding and so would you by allowing it.

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland,

(AP)—The huge rescue operation for a group of alpinists trapped on the north wall of the Eiger mountain was officially abandoned today.

The only survivor among the four climbers, Claudio Corti of Lecco, Italy, arrived at the Eiger glacier funicular station in a stretcher at 4 p.m. He was to be taken to Interlake hospital by special train.

The 90 volunteers from seven nations who took part in the rescue operation were ordered off the mountain by rescue chief Peter Frei, who said the three other members of the group undoubtedly were dead.

The four climbers have been on the mountain since Aug. 3 and became trapped on the steep face two or three days after they started the climb.

Blizzards halted rescue operations Sunday afternoon and today after Corti had been lifted 1,200 feet to the summit by a brave alpinist swinging at the end of winch-operated cable.

"To go down the wall in this much snow would be suicidal folly that would help no one," a guide said.

"No lives will be risked in order to bring dead men down from the north wall," Frei told a group of guides and alpinists at the glacier station.

Air and telescope observations of the other Italian trapped on the wall, Stefano Longhi, 44, also of Lecco, left no doubt that he died of exhaustion and exposure during the night. He had been injured by a rock fall earlier and remained suspended at the end of a rope some 300 feet below the other three since Thursday.

He was seen hanging face down, covered by snow and motionless all day today. His body may remain hanging there as long as the rope holds his weight.

The two German members of the group, Guenther Nordhardt, 27, and Goetz Meier, 26, apparently left the ledge they shared with Corti early Sunday morning in a desperate attempt to make their own way to the top. All trace of them has been lost.

Meanwhile, other mountain accidents claimed the lives of 10 Austrian and German tourists at Innsbruck, Austria, and three Swiss alpinists at Kandersteg, Switzerland.

Ex-Mayor Harrison
Seriously Injured

Former Victoria mayor Claude Harrison will undergo a delicate eye operation Thursday following a Malahat bush accident.

Mrs. Harrison said of the injury, "It is quite serious." No visitors are permitted.

The accident occurred Friday. Mr. Harrison, who is 71, was clearing underbrush on his Malahat property. He was using a large set of cutting shears when a sharp-pointed branch apparently pierced his right eye.

He was able to make his way to his car and drive one and a half miles to his secluded mountain home.

"It must have taken tremendous courage," said his wife.

She summoned aid from the Malahat Chalet and accompanied her husband on the 15-mile drive to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. Harrison was mayor of the city for two two-year terms. He was defeated in December, 1955, by the present mayor, Percy Scurren.

Lightning Only
Suggested Cause

(See Page 2 for Death List)

By GUY RONDEAU

ISSOUDUN, Que. (CP)—Seventy-nine persons died Sunday in Canada's worst plane crash when a big DC-4 dug deep into a swamp and tore apart, leaving flame-singed wreckage scattered over a wide area near this community 15 miles southwest of Quebec City.

While available evidence pointed to lightning as one possible cause of the mid-afternoon tragedy, investigators set about an inquiry. The crash eclipsed the TCA accident last December when 62 persons died against a peak in B.C.

There was no official word available on what might have doomed the Maritime Central Airways plane, inbound for Toronto from London. Aboard were homing vacationers, including many former British servicemen. The plane had been chartered by an Ontario veterans' association and was on course.

All but two of the passengers — a Charlottetown father and his five-year-old son — were from Ontario.

Issoudun villagers told of hearing a "frightening blast" as the plane plunged into the swamp beside thick bushes.

It was last seen whining into the advance clouds of a vicious thunderstorm.

Clothing, passports and parts of bodies were strewn over acres of the swamp.

The body of an infant lay near the empty pilot's seat and a fragment of a navigation map. At another spot, was a human arm.

No other bodies were immediately found.

The plane left Keflavik, Iceland, early Sunday and checked in by radio at Moncton, N.B., Mont Joli, Que., and Quebec City.

Minutes after passing Quebec, it crashed.

An air force plane from Trenton, Ont., dropped three members of a para-rescue squad which, sent back the brief message: "There are no survivors."

Officials Have No Idea as to Cause

MCA officials here said they had "absolutely no idea of what caused the plane to crash."

The aircraft was one of three DC-4's used for overseas charter service. Regular MCA service is mostly in the maritime provinces.

Canon Alexandre DeBlair, parish priest of Ste. Croix, about five miles from the crash scene, saw the plane fly into the storm. Later, he related, "the nuns who work in the presbytery said they had seen a plane flying very low."

"Seconds later there had been a frightening blast. But the nuns did not think it was the plane. They thought it was a highway crash."

Farmer Evariste Charest said he heard a sound "like tin banging against trees" then a loud explosion.

The aircraft was piloted by Norman Ramsay of Montreal, who had been with MCA two years.

The 37-year-old pilot's licence was suspended for six months late in 1954 after a transport department board of inquiry blamed him for "negligence" in the crash of a TCA Super-Constellation near Brampton, Ont.

However, MCA described him as a "good, well-trained pilot."

'EVERYTHING BLOWN TO BITS'

Witness Describes Horror Scene

By FRANCOIS DUSSAULT
ISSOUDUN, Que. (CP)—Everything seems to have been blown to bits—the plane, everyone aboard and every piece of clothing.

Wreckage is strewn everywhere. There are five large holes in the muddy field, each about 15 feet deep. Four of the holes apparently contain the plane's motors. The fifth has a piece of the fuselage in it. There is about a foot of water—green water—in each hole.

Of the 73 passengers and six crew members who went down with the aircraft I could find during the time I was there was the left forearm of a woman.

The crash occurred in a clearing, on the edge of a heavily-wooded area. I was told a number of bodies probably were tossed into the woods. No effort was made to find them Sunday night. The water is ankle deep and the bush is thick.

The plane seems to have been wrecked by a tremendous explosion. The largest single piece of aircraft I saw was only about seven feet long and a foot wide.

Smoke was still coming up from the charred wreckage when I arrived at the scene. But although most of the plane burned there were bits of clothing, purses, personal papers and passports littered on the ground untouched by the flames.

Cement Plant
Knocked Out
By Lightning

Lightning which struck a high tension power line at the B.C. Cement Co. Ltd. plant at Bamberton Saturday has halted cement manufacture for all of B.C.

The plant, sole producer at present, will be closed probably until Thursday.

Two 3,000 KVA transformers were knocked out by the lightning bolt which struck at 3 p.m., halting operation of the kilns and the grinding mills.

Normal output of cement is 10,000 barrels a day.

There will be no curtailment of employment for the 250 workers a company spokesman said. Those who want to remain away can take the period as holiday time.

An emergency transformer is en route from the Vancouver Rolling Mill. It will link with the standby transformer on hand. The transformers operate in banks of two.

It was the third point on the Island to be struck by lightning.

Russ, E. German Pact Readied

BERLIN (UP)—Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev has reached "important" agreements with East German leaders, the East German Radio said today.

The radio said the agreement would be signed Tuesday at the end of talks between Khrushchev, Soviet deputy premier Anastas Mikoyan, East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht and East German Premier Otto Grotewohl.

The agreements will strengthen Soviet-East German co-operation, the unity of the "Socialist Camp," and the cause of peace, the radio said.

FENWICK LANSDOWNE ... to "look around"

Famed Painter Of Bird Life To Make Trip

Combining pleasure with business, Victoria's famed bird and flower painter, 19-year-old Fenwick Lansdowne, is departing Sept. 6 on a trip to New York.

He plans to be away three weeks and says the journey is also in the nature of a field trip.

He will be "looking around the countryside," in his own words.

Lansdowne, who now produces most of his delicate, life-like paintings for an Eastern publishing firm, first came to national notice when critics enthused over an exhibition of his work at the Royal Ontario Museum.

Maclean's Magazine, which published an article on him and eight pages of reproductions of his work, plans to present a further portfolio of his paintings in a forthcoming issue.

"Fen" Lansdowne has had no formal art education other than instruction given him by his mother.

Ald. Geoff McEwen held that when a fair number of cars were having accidents because of their poor condition, that would be the time to consider a testing station. But, he said, there had been no such indication. The car owner was so deluged with taxes of one sort and another, it was not the time to impose one more.

Ald. Elmer McEwen opposed establishing a station because "I'd like to see it cover the whole province."

Prince Breaks Royal Silence Denies Car Driving Charge

LONDON (AP)—A young prince broke traditional royal silence Sunday by answering his critics.

Fifteen-year-old Prince Michael of Kent firmly denied he drove an automobile. He is two years under the legal age for licensed drivers.

"It wasn't me at all," the young prince told the chief of police on the Isle of Wight.

Michael, the son of the Duchess of Kent and eighth in line to the throne, was at the Isle for the Cowes Regatta all last week with Prince Philip.

Some islanders said they saw Michael driving the car of Uffa Fox, noted yacht designer who is a close friend of Prince Philip.

Police Chief P. A. Paddon told reporters: "Prince Michael was interviewed on board the royal yacht Britannia. He denied he had driven a car."

Meanwhile, Queen Elizabeth maintained her regal silence to criticism of her and the royal fishing holiday—same as always.

Grim News Crushes Relatives

TORONTO (CP) — About 100 relatives and friends of people aboard the Maritime Central Airways plane that crashed near Quebec City Sunday waited in vain for the arrival of the ill-fated airplane at Malton airport here.

A posted announcement in the airport waiting room told them first that the plane was overdue. Later, they were ushered into the airport's immigration room, where an MCA official announced that the plane with 79 passengers and crew aboard, had crashed, with no survivors.

The announcement shocked some into silence, others to tears and still others to hysteria. Some frantically tried to grab the passenger list from the MCA official, Ted Mullins, who made the announcement.

Eric Thomlinson of Burlington said that most persons in the room had no inkling of what was coming. They just knew that the plane was overdue.

One man said he thought he had been called into the immigration room because the plane had arrived. "I was looking for my wife," he said, "when this chap got up and announced the plane had crashed and there were no survivors. Just like that."

Women began to cry. Some shrieked hysterically. Men collapsed, white-faced, into chairs. "They can't be dead—not my dad and mum," one thin-faced girl screamed.

... PLANE

The main part of the plane was pitched into the bush 500 feet ahead of the motors. Clothing and equipment hung in trees.

Police believed several bodies might have been thrown into the bush but postponed a search until today.

The afternoon storm poured several inches of rain into the swamp. Searchers worked ankle deep in water and mud.

One twisted propeller was found a quarter-mile away.

The first to report from the crash scene were the three RCAF parachutists—Sgt. Jack Clyn, Don Nivans and Al Smith, all of Trenton.

"Everything seems to have been blown to bits—the plane, everyone aboard and every piece of clothing," reported CBC photographer Francois Duissault.

The plane carried 41 women, 29 men and three children—an infant girl and two boys.

Alan Love and his son Peter, 5, of Charlottetown, were talked into taking the flight by relatives in England. They had believed it would stop at Gan-dar and planned to transfer there to another plane. The DC4 didn't stop and the Loves died in the wreck.

The two stewardesses—Anne-Marie Harvey, 23, and Charlotte LeBlanc, 28, both of Moncton—had joined Maritime Central only three months ago.

The illness of her husband probably saved the life of Mrs. Hilda Ashton of Toronto.

First reports had included her name in the passenger list. But a check of her home disclosed she had flown home late last month after attending a family reunion in Sittingbourne, Kent, because her husband had been taken to hospital with a serious lung condition.
